Five Drowned on Sunday Outings

Grandfather Meets Death Attempting To Save Girl

Virginian Is Killed In Channel While Friend, Unable to Swim, Is Helpless

Five persons were drowned in Washington area waters yesterday, among them a 55-year-old man and his 4-year-old granddaughter whom he tried to rescue.

The victims were:

George Scheuch, 55, of 1512 Crittenden st. nw., drowned near Deale, Md.

Penny Scheuch, 4, his granddaughter, of 4406 15th st. nw.

Harry H. Everly, 42, of 501 12th st. ne., gasoline station proprietor, drowned in Deep Creek at Baker, Md.

William F. Cryer, 46, 14 8th st. ne., drowned in the Potomac River, near Blossom Point, Md.

Donald Peacoe, 23, of East Woodford, Va., drowned in the Georgetown Channel above the Three Sisters Island.

Returning From Outing

Scheuch and his granddaughter were drowned shortly before 5 p. m. in Herring Bay, at a point about a mile-off Deale, which is about 4 miles north of North Beach.

They were aboard Scheuch's 20-foot inboard motorboat, returning from an outing. Also aboard were Penny's mother, Mrs. Dorothea Scheuch, and Penny's brother, George, 2. Penny's father, Dr. Charles D. Scheuch, was in Washington.

The grandfather was at the controls when suddenly Penny fell overboard. He commanded her mother to take over the controls and circle back, then he leaped into the water after the child.

The mother saw him reach out and grasp the child, then saw her squirm from his grasp.

Life Preservers Fall Short

Mr. Scheuch had to negotiate a 150-foot circle to return to where the two struggled in the water but she was not familiar enough with the operation of the boat to do this.

She could get no closer than 25 or 30 feet of them. She tossed out several life preservers and lines but they fell short. Finally, both sank.

Elmer S. Wessells, of 4301 Lawrence st., Colmar Manor, Md., was putting out in a boat from Deale to fish and saw a man struggling in the water. He directed his boat in that direction, then saw the man disappear from sight.

Wessells anchored the Scheuch boat and carried the mother and her younger child to shore where Anne Arundel County police at Galesville were notified.

The body of the girl was recovered by county police at 9:15 p. m. and taken ashore. She was pronounced dead at 9:40 p. m. by Dr. John Claffy, county medical examiner.

One of those who watched, grim-eyed, as the child's body was carried ashore was her father, Dr.

District Due to Swelter Today As Moist Air Replaces Dry

Washington's heat-battered citizens were given a breather yesterday, but it was only a shot in the arm to fortify them against sweltering temperatures due today and Tuesday.

No record highs are expected by the Weather Bureau, but the humidity will swing upward.

The dry air which blew down from the north and made life seem worth living yesterday will be replaced by moist air as the winds start sweeping in from the southwest.

"It'll be uncomfortable," the forecaster admitted.

The low mercury mark today (sometime early this morning) will be about 68. After that, the heat holiday is over. The day will become sunny and quite warm and the temperature will climb near the 92 mark.

On Tuesday, it is expected the temperatures again will be in the low 90s, but with even a higher humidity percentage than expected today.

The temperature got as high as 89 yesterday (at 4:50 p. m.), but few persons were aware of this unless they peeked at their thermometers. The humidity remained low—between 30 and 35 per cent—because of the dry air from the north.

Low temperature of the day was the 68 recorded at 6:30 a. m.

Yesterday's pleasant breezes and low humidity combined to produce generally balmy weather which brought out thousands of Sunday strollers and sports enthusiasts.

Swimming pools, golf courses and tennis courses were jammed. An estimated 45,000 persons visited the Zoo. The crowds in Rock Creek, Potomac and other parks were reported exceptionally heavy by Park Police.

New England Congressmen For Home Rule

Poll Shows 24 Favor District Measure, With 3 Against It

By Chalmers M. Roberts
Post Reporter

All five freshmen House members from New England favor home rule for Washington.

Adding those House members who last year voted for or against home rule on the House floor and a poll of two others who did not vote in 1948, New England's 28 House members divide this way:

For: 24.
Against: 3.
Noncommittal: 1.

These facts came out today in a check by The Washington Post as the House District subcommittee was to have another of its many hearings on the Senate-approved Kefauver home rule bill and similar measures.

Hearings were to end last week but Subcommittee Chairman Harris (D., Ark.) has indicated he probably will keep them going as long as possible to avoid a committee vote this session. Only 8 of nearly 30 witnesses remaining are scheduled for today's hearing, beginning at 10 a. m.

In the poll of New Englanders, one member checked because he did not vote last year—he was Speaker then—was Minority Leader Martin of Massachusetts. Martin said:

"I'm certainly for the idea. I supported the Auchincloss bill last year and would vote for the Kefauver bill, reserving the right to offer any amendments."

Here are the comments of the five New England House members who were not in the previous Congress when the Auchincloss home rule bill weathered two House roll calls, but was withdrawn before a final roll call:

Charles P. Nelson (R., Me.), a former mayor of Augusta:

"I think that in all cases the

Russians to Lift Bars Today for Leubeck Trucks

Hamburg, Germany, July 24 (AP).—German officials reported today the Russians will permit resumption of truck traffic from Luebeck to western Berlin Monday.

Luebeck was the starting point of the "little blockade" of Berlin which went into effect July 8. Later it spread to all bizonal crossing points along the Soviet frontier except Helmstedt, where the main motor traffic highway to Berlin enters the Soviet zone.

German officials said the Russians at Luebeck had told their British zone opposites that truck traffic to Berlin would be permitted to cross there beginning Monday morning.

Typhoon Rips U. S. Base on Okinawa

Storm Kills Child, Hurts 16 Americans And Heads for China

Tokyo (Monday), July 25 (AP).—Sixteen Americans were injured, one child was killed and millions of dollars in property damage was done by a 150-mile-an-hour typhoon named "Gloria," which lashed the Island of Okinawa for eight hours Saturday.

This word was contained in an Army radio message early today from the big American base 300 miles south of Japan.

[The United Press said the typhoon "Gloria" roared across the China Sea toward the thickly populated Chinese coast today, threatening the port of Shanghai with winds up to 125 miles an hour.

[The Air Force's central weather bureau said "Gloria" would hit the east coast of China during the night, probably centering around Hangchow, 100 miles south of Shanghai, with "undiminished force."

[A second typhoon, "Hester," reported forming earlier Sunday was located at 60 miles west of Saipan and 130 miles north of Guam, moving almost due west at 6 miles an hour with 100-mile winds at its center.]

Nationality of the dead child on Okinawa was not stated, but a previous sketchy message received Sunday night said it was American.

The latest Okinawa message said one half of all military buildings on the island had been destroyed and that the typhoon was the worst since the occupation of the big island in 1945.

The previous worst storm, last October 1, did damage officially estimated at 10 million dollars.

In Saturday's typhoon, the message said, many huts at army headquarters disappeared and the compound housing Filipino employes was wiped out. The commissary, chapel and a pier were destroyed, and the dependent housing area was half-destroyed.

Truman Sees 6-Mo. Test Of Economy

Drastic Action Likely In January in Event Trend Continues On Downgrade

By The Associated Press

President Truman regards the next half year as a proving period for the economy. If the downdrift continues, he will seek vigorous Federal action in January.

This was the prediction yesterday of a top Government official concerned with economic policy—one who regards the recovery factors as strong.

"If there is no upturn this fall, or no evidence of a steadying-out which will lead to an upturn later, Mr. Truman will feel that he must be decisive," the official told a reporter.

Such a "decisive" program, he predicted, might embrace some of the pump-priming measures written into the proposed "Economic Expansion Act of 1949," introduced by Senator Murray (D., Mont.) and 17 colleagues.

The measure has no White House indorsement now. Its proposals are more drastic than the 11-point anti-depression program offered by Mr. Truman in his mid-year economic report early this month.

Pressure for a stronger program already exists in some administration quarters. It will grow stronger if unemployment continues to rise and production to decline, the official predicted.

The proposals of the Murray bill include Federal loans and tax inducements for plant expansion, a 30-billion-dollar reserve shelf of public works plans, emergency powers to alleviate local pools of idleness, and funds to retain workers and move payless families from distress areas.

Mr. Truman said in his midyear report that jobs and production are still at prosperity levels, that there is no need for "the kind of Government action that would be called for in a serious economic emergency."

He did not indicate the stage of recession at which he would reach for the economic fire extinguisher. Some reports have stated he would call on Congress for emergency action if unemployment reached five million persons, as against 3,800,000 last reported. This is not confirmed by any White House source.

But the official quoted here believes that Mr. Truman will be looking for business to improve this fall and will consider the time ripe for action if an upswing is not in sight by the New Year, when Congress reconvenes.

Officials Opposed To 'Boondoggling'

By the United Press

If the Government should have to launch a huge public works program to combat a severe depression there will be no excuse for boondoggling "make work" projects, officials said yesterday.

They estimated that Federal, State and city governments have a backlog of 130 billion dollars worth of public works which are considered necessary or desirable, even if there is no depression.

The hitch is that only a tiny fraction—about 3 per cent—has been blueprinted in enough detail so that work could be started quickly.

Senate Leaders Line Up

Fight to Restore ECA Funds, Defeat Amendments, Impends

By The Associated Press

Senate leaders lined up yesterday to knock out a series of restrictive amendments to the $5,723,724,000 foreign aid bill at the same time boosting its total at least 74 million dollars.

"I think we can beat all the amendments and make the addition," Majority Leader Lucas said as he called for passage of the multi-billion-dollar measure by Tuesday.

Backing up Lucas are Chairman Connally (D., Tex.) of the Foreign Relations Committee and two former chairmen of it, Vandenberg (R., Mich.) and George (D., Ga.).

"But it may take a week before we settle all these controversies," George told a reporter.

Leading the opposition is Senator McKellar (D., Tenn.), chairman of the Appropriations Committee and President Pro Tempore of the Senate. He is backing up his committee's action in adopting several controversial amendments. Others are bobbing up on the floor.

Usually the Senate goes along with decisions of the powerful 21-member Appropriations group.

Lined up with McKellar is a potent group of Senators, but its strength remains untested pending actual roll call votes.

Here is how the bill approved by the committee breaks down:

$3,778,380,000 for the second year of the Marshall Plan ending June 30, 1950. This includes 150 million dollars. The Economic Cooperation Administration asked $4,198,200,000 and the committee cut off 10 per cent.

One billion dollars for the April-June, 1949, quarter of the Marshall Plan. This is a reduction of 74 million dollars in the amount ECA asked.

Nine hundred million dollars for the Army's program of government and relief in the occupied areas of Germany, Austria, Japan and the Ryukyu Islands. The committee knocked off 10 per cent or 100 million dollars.

Forty-five million dollars to aid Greece and Turkey, a cut of five million dollar, or 10 per cent.

Three hundred and forty-four thousand dollars for continuing a

400,000 Jews Reported Sent To Red Siberia

Anti-Communist Group Calls on U. N. to Stop Soviet Deportations

Lake Success, July 24 (AP).—The American Jewish League against Communism today made public a letter asserting that about 400,000 Jews are being deported from the Soviet Ukraine and White Russia to Archangel and Siberia.

The league asked Secretary-General Trygve Lie to use U. N. facilities to end what the league called this "infraction of human rights."

The letter to Lie described the uprooting of Jews from their homes on less than 24 hours' notice. It said the reasons for the deportation are Prime Minister Stalin's desire to get anti-totalitarian Jews away from the borders in preparation for possible war, plus Soviet appeasement of anti-Semites.

The deportations came to light when Polish Jews were unable to correspond with relatives in the Ukraine, White Russia.

The league said members of European diplomatic and consular services reaching Warsaw from Russia have reported the Russian countryside is filled with northbound deportation trains crowded with Jewish families.

Congress Urged To Save Jobs for Workers Over 45

The International Association of Machinists yesterday urged Congress to eliminate alleged discrimination against workers over 45.

The union's executive board said in a resolution adopted at its summer meeting here that many businesses refuse to hire workers after they pass their middle forties.

It said Congress either should lower the Social Security retirement age, or pass a law to prohibit any employer from dismissing or refusing to hire any employe because of age alone.

Machinists President Al Hayes pointed out that the law now bars employers from discriminating against union members.

"We believe a similar law to protect working men and women over 45 would be desirable and enforceable," he said.

Senators Plan Fight to Keep Atom Secrets

Hickenlooper Cites 1946 Law; Tydings Against Sharing Data

By the United Press

Senators Tydings (D., Md.) and Hickenlooper (R., Iowa) yesterday joined a congressional drive to block any sharing of atomic bomb secrets with Britain or other Atlantic Pact allies.

Statements by the two members of the Congressional Atomic Energy Committee brought further into the open a major national policy dispute previously confined to supersecret conferences at President Truman's Blair House residence and in the Capitol.

Tydings asserted in a radio broadcast that it would be "foolish" for nations allied with the United States in the Atlantic Pact to "duplicate" this country's vast atomic project, "even if they could."

Hickenlooper said the 1946 Atomic Energy Act forbids sharing of United States weapons secrets and that neither President Truman "nor anybody else except Congress" can change the law.

He said he will fully support Senator Knowland (R., Calif.), another Atomic Committee member, who has announced he will lead a Senate floor fight against any executive branch attempt to share atomic bomb information.

The public stands taken by the three Senators appeared to confirm previous unofficial reports that the hush-hush atomic conferences of the past 10 days covered the question whether President Truman has authority to give more atom bomb know-how to Britain and Canada.

The two nations were full wartime partners in development of the bomb but have been cut off from most production secrets since 1946. Britain has announced she intends to make atomic bombs of her own, and reportedly has sought help from this country to reduce the cost and time required for the project. Canada is a major source of raw uranium for the United States atomic plants. The Canadian government

Senate Gets Arms Plan With Broad Power Today

Authority Provided To Give Weapons To Friendly Nations Nearly Unlimited

By Fitzhugh Turner
NYHT News Service

President Truman's $1,450,000,000 foreign military assistance program, as prepared for submission to Congress today, asks for almost unrestricted authority to help the free world rearm against aggression.

The proposed legislation, it was learned yesterday, not only will give the President authority to send arms (except atomic weapons) to almost any friendly nation, but also will make a foreign policy declaration as revolutionary as that contained in the newly-ratified North Atlantic Security Alliance.

As approved by the President's Foreign Assistance Correlation Committee, it will assert that "it is the policy and purpose of the people of the United States" to provide military assistance in the form of equipment and materials, services and financial aid:

1. To nations which have joined the United States in collective defense arrangements. This would bring in Latin American countries, signatories of the Rio pact, as well as members of the new North Atlantic alliance.

2. To other nations "whose increased ability to defend themselves against aggression is important to the national interest in the United States." This would include Greece and Turkey, already receiving American military aid, and such other countries as the President might designate.

Mutual Aid as Principle

The bill also would give the President wide authority—within congressional appropriations—to provide arms or money through grants, cash payments, manufacture, repair, or borrowing from Government stocks. It specifies that in the case of alliance partners, aid shall be given based on the principle of each partner "making the contribution it is able to make through self-help and mutual aid."

Details have not been made public hitherto, but much of the opposition aroused in Congress has been based on the sweeping nature of the President's program. Senator Taft (R., Ohio) joined the opposition last night.

"I don't want to give the President—and that means the State Department—unlimited power to go out and arm the world in time of peace," he told an American Broadcasting Co. audience.

Senator Taft predicted that Congress would refuse to approve "a new lend-lease program" at this session, but said aid for Greece and Turkey would be continued. He added that he was

Catholics Told It Is Sin to Read 'Daily Worker'

New York, July 24 (AP).—Catholics were told today that reading the Daily Worker is a sin.

The statement came from the Rev. Edwin B. Broderick in a sermon at St. Patrick's Cathedral explaining the effect of the Pope's recent order excommunicating Communist Catholics or those who follow Communism.

The Daily Worker is the official organ of the Communist Party in the United States.

The sermon was delivered in the presence of Francis Cardinal Spellman, Archbishop of New York.

Later, in answer to a question, Cardinal Spellman said Catholics who must read the Daily Worker and other Communist literature for their work must get explicit permission from diocesan authorities.

Father Broderick said Catholics "sin grievously, at least" if they read Communist publications, even "for information, professional reasons or curiosity."

New York Group To Honor Hoover And Marshall

New York, July 24 (U.P.).—Former President Herbert Hoover and Gen. George C. Marshall will receive the New York Board of Trade's 1949 awards for distinguished service and contributions to the "American Way of Life," it was announced today.

Mortimer E. Sprague, president of the board, said Hoover would be honored for his work as head of the Hoover Commission and Marshall for his contribution in "restoring a world devastated by war" by the Marshall Plan.

The awards will be presented at a dinner October 18, Sprague said.

A Harried Prize Winner

Radio Jackpot of $28,000 Shrinking, Perhaps to $7000

By Bill Brinkley
Post Reporter

When John J. Noone, Washington postal clerk, won $28,000 in prizes on a radio hit-the-jackpot program back in April, he was the happiest person alive.

Today he is a harried and chastened man.

Noone copped the swag, including a flight to the North Pole, by identifying a "secret saying" as "All that meat and no potatoes."

The prizes are mostly in now and to Noone the $28,000 looks like a lot of potatoes and very little meat. To give you an idea:

One of the prizes was $1000 worth of women's hats. They arrived not long ago at Noone's home 4-G Southway, Greenbelt, Md.

Noone, normally a calm man, strove to control his emotions as he related what happened:

"The hats were supposed to be styled individually. I wonder how individual a person can get? They came, I think from the basement of a New York store—a very, very deep basement. I have seen better hats on a circus horse. I took them to an Alexandria shop. From the '$1000' worth of hats, I realized a grand total of $80."

As another result of his jackpot winnings, Noone, anytime he feels like it, can get on a plane and make trips to two faraway places: Caracas, Venezuela, as well as the North Pole. The North Pole flight—round trip—is valued at $1000 also. Presumably he would just fly over the Pole and fly back.

"There's not much point in landing, I suppose," he remarked sadly.

Both trips have turned into two big fat white elephants so far as the 36-year-old postal clerk is concerned. In the first place, he doesn't want to visit either place.

"I'm not romantically inclined

Be Merry As You Eat, Drink As Sales Tax Is 'Unfunny'

(Second of a Series)

By Sam Zagoria
Post Reporter

Eat, drink and be merry—until you get the check next week.

Drinking, whether at home or the cocktail lounge, will be more expensive. Both will be affected by increased gallonage taxes, the sales tax, and boosted license fees.

If you buy whisky by the fifth, the beverage tax will be a nickel higher and if you purchase by the quart it will be $0.063. The two per cent sales tax will be tacked on top of this.

At the restaurants, individual meals totaling more than $1.25 will be subject to sales tax.

Separate checks and Dutch treating may rise in popularity. Waitresses will not be happy about the additional work, but patrons will avoid difficulty in determining the price of their own meal.

Groceries Are Exempt but Other Items Are Not

At the grocery store, housewives will find that food for human consumption will be exempted from tax. However, hardly a single go cart is expected to get by the checkout counter without tax, since cleaning materials are covered.

In hotels, tourists and others billed at the daily rate, will find the sales tax added to their bills. Rooms rented on a more permanent basis or for meetings are exempted.

The tourists, probably accustomed to the sales tax already since half the states have one, are expected to contribute to the city's coffers during their stay here. They will feel the tax on hotel rooms, expensive meals, drinking sessions and such sightseeing essentials as sunglasses, film and maps. Guide services and bus tours, however, are tax-free.

Press Attacks Acheson

Czech Premier Defies Pope, Pledges Country to Stalin

Prague, July 24 (AP).—Communist Premier Antonin Zapotocky today bluntly defied the Vatican and pledged allegiance of Czechoslovakia to Soviet Prime Minister Stalin.

Zapotocky said that if Czechoslovakia is faced with a choice between Moscow and Rome, her answer would be:

"Moscow-Stalin-Socialism."

Zapotocky stated his defiance of the Vatican at a meeting of 15,000 trade unionists at Trutnov, northern Bohemian town in the former Sudeten German region.

"We shall not allow any reactionary power, not even the Vatican, to interfere in our internal affairs," the Premier said.

Even as Zapotocky spoke, the Czech Communist press was accusing Pope Pius XII of supporting sabotage in this country.

It also assailed United States Secretary of State Dean Acheson for his charge that the Czech government was seeking "tyrannous domination" of the churches, and accused the Americans of persecution in Korea.

The Vatican came under renewed fire from the two big Communist newspapers, Rude Pravo, the party organ, and Mlada Fronta, paper of the Communist youth organization. Chief target was the Pope's order for excommunication of Communists.

In Slovakia, a government spokesman called this decree a "devilish means of sowing discord." He was Laco Novomesky, commissioner for education and a suspended priest. He charged the excommunication order represented a "most striking example of using religion to bar social progress."

Mlada Fronta also turned its fire on Archbishop Josef Beran of Prague, claiming that he was "committing more provocations and open antistate activity" from seclusion in his palace here.

Mundt Wants U. S. Contracts Offices

By The Associated Press

Senator Mundt (R., S. Dak.) proposed yesterday a Government clearing house of information to aid businessmen seeking Federal contracts. He said it would discourage "five percenter" operations.

Mundt also suggested that all persons charging a fee for help in obtaining Government contracts for others be required to register with Congress as lobbyists now do.

The South Dakota Senator is a member of the Senate Investigations Subcommittee checking into whether influence has figured in the awarding of such contracts. Public hearings will start soon.

Paul Grindle, a Massachusetts furniture manufacturer, has said he paid $1000 to James V. Hunt, a former Army officer and War Assets Administration employe, for help in seeking a contract. Grindle's story was told in the New York Herald Tribune.

Hunt asserted he has never tried to sell influence and that nobody he knows in Government is subject to influence.

As a result of the subcommittee's preliminary investigations, Secretary of the Army Gray has suspended two major generals—Alden H. Waitt, chief of the Chemical Corps, and Herman Feldman, the quartermaster general.

Mundt told reporters yesterday the business of Government buying has become so big "it is almost impossible for a man—a small businessman in particular—to know how to go about getting a Government contract."

Mundt said for that reason many manufacturers have had to turn to the "five percenters"—men who collect a commission for their help.

"So far as I know there is nothing illegal about that in itself, but there always is the danger that such people will try to trade on friendship with Government officials, or to exert influence," Mundt said.

Small Business Angle Of Contracts Debated

NYHT News Service

A lively battle is now being fought behind the scenes in Washington over the issue of whether the armed services may divert some contracts to smal businesses even though they do not submit the lowest bids, it was learned yesterday.

The outcome of this fight will determine whether millions of dollars worth of future military contracts may go to small firms which are apparently unable to bid competitively with industrial giants producing the same items.

Three agencies are directly involved in the contest—Congress, the National Military Establishment and the Comptroller General's Office.

It all started two years ago when Congress enacted the so-called "Procurement Act of 1947" with the express intention of giving small businesses a bigger share of Government contracts.

GAR Veterans To Hold Last Encampment

Indianapolis, July 24 (U.P.).—Only five surviving Union Civil War veterans plan to attend the eighty-third and last encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic here next month, it was disclosed tonight.

But the few boys in blue who attend the last encampment will wind up in a blaze of modernity.

Two will come by plane, and events of the final encampment will be televised.

A resolution adopted at the 1948 meeting in Grand Rapids, Mich., said the 1949 meet will be the last. Indianapolis, host for the first encampment in 1866, will receive the veterans for the last time August 28.

Only 17 members now remain of more than 350,000.

Charles L. Chappel, 101, Long Beach, Calif., and James A. Hard, 108, Rochester, N. Y., oldest of the surviving 17, will come by plane.

Others who will attend, if health permits, are Joseph Clovese, 102, Pontiac, Mich., the only Negro left in the GAR; Hiram R. Gale, 102, Seattle, 1948 commander-in-chief, and Theodore Penland, 100, Portland, Ore., who will preside over the final campfire.

The Marine Band will be sent from Washington by act of Congress.

A new postage stamp commemorating the GAR will be issued.

New Gas and Oil Deposits Found in Arctic by U. S. Navy

By the United Press

Discovery of new oil and gas deposits in the Arctic basin which indicate reserves are "far more widespread" than expected, was reported yesterday by the Navy.

The deposits are by far the largest found since the Navy started explorations in the area five years ago.

Describing the natural gas deposits as of "commercial quantity," the Navy said a well drilled six miles south of Point Barrow already is meeting all fuel requirements for heating and cooking at its installations there.

Commodore William G. Greenman, chairman of the Navy's committee on naval petroleum reserves, reported that five deep wells have been drilled and three others are being dug. All have produced "shows" of oil and gas, he said.

These "shows," plus discovery of the big deposits near Point Barrow, he said, "justify the careful exploration program being conducted in Alaska."

The test area lies in the Alaskan basin north of the Brooks range and extending up to the Arctic ocean.

Rankin Sees No Hope Of '52-20' Bill Passage

Representative Rankin (D., Miss.), chairman of the House Veterans Committee, expressed belief yesterday that there isn't "the shadow of a chance" that Congress will extend the "52-20" provisions of the GI Bill of Rights, which are due to expire tonight.

Under the expiring provisions, veterans could receive unemployment compensation of $20 a week for a maximum of 52 weeks.

Bull Heads National War College Today

Lieut. Gen. Harold R. Bull assumes command at an informal ceremony today of the National War College, one of the armed forces' two top educational institutions.

Gen. Bull

Bull succeeds Vice Adm. Harry W. Hill, who will take over as chairman of the Navy General Board in Washington. This board acts as an advisory agency to the Secretary of the Navy.

Hill has been head of the National War College since 1946 when it was first set up. It operates under the Joint Chiefs of Staff as a top level educational institution for all three services. Its commandant is rotated every three years among the Navy, Army and Air Force.

Bull, a native of Springfield, Mass., is bringing to his new post a record of combat and staff duty. He saw service in France in the First World War.

In the last war, prior to going overseas, he was, in turn, assistant division commander of the Fourth Motorized Division, assistant chief of staff in the War Department, head of the Army Ground Forces' replacement and school command, and commanding general of the Third Corps.

Sent to the European theater, he became assistant chief of staff in charge of operations and training on the Supreme Headquarters Staff. In July, 1945, he became deputy chief of staff and later chief of staff of United States forces in Europe.

Hill also is a veteran of both World Wars. In the last war as a rear admiral and as an amphibious group commander, he took part in the capture of Tarawa, the Gilberts, the Marshall, Marianas and Iwo Jima.

2 Bills to Back Federal Union of Pact Nations

By the United Press

Senator Kefauver (D., Tenn.), yesterday announced that bills will be introduced in both houses of Congress this week authorizing President Truman to call an international conference aimed at creating a "Federal Union" of Atlantic Pact nations.

The bills would carry out a proposal first made early this year by the Atlantic Union Committee, an organization of prominent citizens headed by former Supreme Court Justice Owen J. Roberts. William L. Clayton, former Undersecretary of State, and Robert P. Patterson, former Secretary of War, are vice chairmen of the committee.

Kefauver predicted strong bipartisan support for the step in both houses. He will sponsor the resolution along with Representatives Wadsworth (R., N. Y.), Smathers (D., Fla.), Judd (R., Minn.), Boggs (D., La.) and probably several other Senators and Representatives.

Secretary of State Acheson told a new conference recently the State Department now had no plans for seeking closer union of the 12 nations allied in the security pact.

His statement did not close the door, however, on Administration action along those lines if a Congressional majority indorsed it.

Kefauver conceded there is little likelihood of action at the present session. But he said it will be pressed when Congress reconvenes in January.

The plan envisages a "supranational" North Atlantic Government to which the 12 powers would surrender a part of their sovereignties.

Assuming such a conference reached agreement on a constitution, it would be necessary to put through sweeping amendments to the U. S. Constitution before this country could take part.

China Armies Move For Decisive Battle

Conquest Feared

Briton Calls A-Bomb Fuss Aid to Soviet

London, July 24 (U.P.).—A top-ranking British political columnist today warned that continued friction between the United States and Britain on atomic and economic issues might pave the way for Communist conquest of most of the world.

The Sunday Observer's "Student of Europe" said that if Anglo-American unity is disrupted "everything breaks up . . . neither Western Europe, nor the Middle East nor Southeast Asia could be defended against the global Communist offensive."

The columnist said America should "readjust" her attitude to make possible a solution of the economic crisis, while Britain should yield on atomic issues.

The Observer's "Student" proposed specifically that the United States promise to buy "fixed quantities of sterling-area goods in exchange for her exports" to ease the British dollar shortage.

He proposed the creation of "an intentional atomic authority among those states willing to submit to it" as a substitute for the world atomic administration vetoed by Russia.

At the same time, a left-wing Labor member of Parliament reported Britain has made "remarkable progress" in atomic research. He said recent secret atomic talks in Washington were held because America is afraid of being outstripped by Britain in nuclear knowledge.

"Rebel" Laborite Richard Crossman said in his Sunday Pictorial column that Britain should concentrate on the industrial uses of atomic energy, leaving bomb-making to other countries.

Hongkong, July 24 (U.P.).—Communist and Nationalist armies maneuvered today within five miles of Changsha, formerly the Nationalists' chief base in south central China, in what observers believed was the prelude to a decisive battle.

The Nationalists apparently were trying to draw the Communists into Changsha, then close a pincers from the north and the south. The Communists, maneuvering along a much wider front, appeared to be planning to envelop both Changsha and Hengyang, 100 miles south, in one swoop.

Reports from Canton said President Li Tsung-jen had cabled his envoys in Washington to "intensify efforts" to get some American commitment to help stem the Communist advance.

The reports said Chinese diplomatic sources in Canton were optimistic about these efforts, especially if Nationalist troops make a stand against the Reds.

Tibetan Expulsion Of Chinese Explained

New Delhi, July 24 (AP).—The Chinese Ambassador to India reported today he had information that Tibet's rulers had expelled the Chinese government commission at Lhasa because they feared some of its members were Communists.

The ambassador, Dr. Lo Chia Neun, said incomplete reports reaching him indicated that was the reason for what he called a revolt of Tibet's priestly rulers.

U. S. Ponders New Policy For China and Far East

By The Associated Press

Secretary of State Acheson was reported yesterday to have ordered the "best brains" available in and out of Government to work on China policy. A full-scale effort is afoot to create a new pattern for American diplomacy in the Far East.

Acheson's No. 1 trouble-shooter and international negotiator, Ambassador Philip C. Jessup, has been assigned to spark an intensive study of the Far Eastern situation. It will be made by half a dozen nongovernmental experts on that area of the world.

Jessup is directing preparation of a forthcoming "White Paper" on past American policies toward China. It is supposed to clear the way for a new policy.

Plans for the document have stirred opposition from both the Chinese Nationalists, whose embassy has urged reconsideration, and on Capitol Hill. Senator McCarran (D., Nev.) said it would play into Communist hands and shouldn't come out now.

The Far Eastern policy review involves Jessup, Acheson himself, policy-planner George F. Kennan, Deputy Undersecretary Dean Rusk, Far Eastern Affairs Chief Walton Butterworth and various other top-ranking American diplomats.

This now has reached a critical point in two respects. First, the White Paper is tentatively due the first week in August and the urgency now falls on means of dealing with the future.

Second, the situation in China rapidly is approaching a new phase, long-expected. A revived Communist sweep to the south toward Canton is regarded here as putting the finishing pressures on what remains of the Chiang Kai-shek administration.

It may speed the day when the Communists will proclaim (probably in early fall) a government of their own. This will raise the question of recognition.

Acheson and his advisers have to answer three basic questions:

1. When a Communist government is created, what kind of political and trade relationship should the United States and other Western powers establish with it?

2. If large pockets of resistance to Communist domination continue in remote areas after the Communists have overrun most of China, should the U. S. assist the resistance groups? Also should the U. S. provide underground support for anti-Communist groups which might be formed in Communist-controlled China?

3. In the lands around Communist China what kind of defense concepts can be laid down to block the spread of Communism?

Senators Plan Atom Battle

said last week it has no intention of producing any bombs.

Informed sources said the President will try to prevent the atomic dispute from becoming entangled with the administration's $1,450,000,000 arms-for-Europe program by assuring Congress in his arms message today that weapons shipped abroad will not include the A-bomb.

Nevertheless some Senators are privately discussing the possibility of introducing a bill to close any possible legal loopholes in the atomic law which might be used to grant more information to Britain.

Law Clear, Says Hickenlooper

Hickenlooper said he would support any such move, but added: "I think the law is clear, and its history and legislative background clearly indicates that neither the executive branch nor anybody else except Congress has a right to change the policy."

Tydings' statement was made in an interview with the radio commentor Charles Parmer.

Asserting his strong opposition to any sharing of the bomb, the Maryland Democrat said:

"I think that is a weapon that is ours. We have the know-how, we are making them, we have the planes to deliver them, and it would be foolish to duplicate this effort over and over again in other countries, even though they could."

Meanwhile, Chairman McMahon (D., Conn.) of the Atomic Committee said at Colgate University, Hamilton, N. Y., that the production of "more and better" atomic bombs must be this Nation's first order of business.

He said it is "the prime tragedy of postwar history" that Russia has blocked international control of atomic energy, but that since negotiations are stalemated, the United States has no alternative but to keep far ahead of the rest of the world.

Cuban Duelist Switches to Guns, He's Still Unhurt

Havana, July 24 (AP).—Former Senator Eduardo Chibas, who has settled stormy political arguments half a dozen times with sabre duels, tried out the dueling pistol today—but nobody got hurt.

Chibas and writer Rene Fiallo each fired two shots at a distance of 25 paces. The judge declared honor satisfied and stopped the shooting. Neither was hit.

"Really, we are bad shooters," Chibas commented.

The duel—legally forbidden in Cuba—was provoked by an article Fiallo wrote titled "The Bad Thief," which Chibas considered detrimental to his reputation.

All Chibas' former duels over the last few years had been fought with the sabre and in none of them was he seriously wounded. His opponents are also in good health.

Russia Claims Big Jap Defeat Role for Navy

Moscow, July 24 (U.P.).—Russia, celebrating Navy Day with thundering salvoes from warships in 17 harbors, claimed today the Soviet navy "played an outstanding role in the crushing defeat of Japanese militarists."

All newspapers pointed out the greatness of Soviet naval power with its far-flung ports extending from the Pacific to the Danube and from the Arctic to the Caspian, and all prominently printed a picture of Premier Josef Stalin as the founder of the modern navy.

Admiral Ivan Yumashev, commander in chief of Soviet naval forces who commanded the red banner Pacific fleet during the war, said in Pravda:

"After the capitulation of Germany the world war continued in the Far East, Japan, with its resources still unexhausted, then continued a stubborn struggle against the Anglo-American forces.

"The struggle dragged on and the end would not have been in sight if the Soviet Union had not intervened . . . Our Pacific fleet closely coordinated with land forces dealt a series of powerful blows at the enemy's naval defenses and paralyzed them."

"By means of daring landing operations we captured the (Korean) ports of Seishin, Rashin, Yuki and others," he said. "We returned to our country lands belonging to it in southern Sakhalin and the Kurile Islands. The Japanese beast was forced to its knees and imperialist Japan capitulated."

Soviet Astronomers Break Off With West

New York, July 24 (AP).—Astronomy is the second Russian science to adopt political restriction for its studies.

This was shown in resolutions adopted at a recent meeting of astronomers in Leningrad.

The first Russian science to accept political limitations was genetics, the study of heredity. In genetics the restrictions were officially sponsored.

As far as the new reports show, the astronomers' action was voluntary. Astronomy is a small science, where in the United States about 100 men do most of the important work, and in Russia the numbers are not greatly different.

The Leningrad resolution announced opposition to "formalism in Western bourgeois astronomy."

The formalism, as explained in the resolutions, is use of theory to assist in fact-finding. Theory has been one of the great tools for discovery in astronomy, and the Russians do not explain what they will substitute, other than fact-finding, which everybody always has used to the limit.

Italy to Introduce Fast New Train

Rome, July 24 (AP).—There are no slow passenger trains in speed-loving Italy.

First there's the "Accelerato" (accelerated). Then there's the "Diretto" (direct) followed by the "Direttissimo" (very direct) and finally the superfast "Rapidos" which literally burn up the rails.

Now, reports Asra News Agency, the state operated Italian railways are planning to introduce an even faster train for the 1950 holy year.

It will be called "Lampo" (lightning).

Police Find Mountain Climber Lost 39 Years

Alessandria, Italy, July 24 (U.P.).—The perfectly preserved body of an amateur mountain climber lost on Mont Blanc 39 years ago was brought here today.

Police found the body of Giuseppe Garrone, a 34-year-old school teacher who vanished in July, 1910, in an ice hole on Mont Blanc Friday.

They said that Garrone's fully clothed body was perfectly preserved in ice.

Eye Operation

Douglas To Go Under Knife Today

London, July 24 (AP).—United States Ambassador Lewis Douglas will undergo a major eye operation Monday for removal of a cataract resulting from an injury while fishing last April, the American Embassy announced today.

The operation will be performed at Middlesex Hospital by Dr. Maurice Whiting, London eye specialist.

"Mr. Douglas and the doctors have known that this operation would be required since the time when it was found that it would not be necessary to remove the eye," the statement said.

"The fixing of the date of July 25 is an indication that recovery of the eye has now progressed to the point where the operation can be made."

Restoration For ECA Asked

"watchdog committee" on foreign aid.

Lucas, Connally, George and Vandenberg already have accepted a cutback of about 10 per cent or more than 500 million dollars in the over-all funds.

It is sought to restore the 74 million dollars cut off ECA funds for the April-June quarter of this year. The House allowed this full amount in its bill.

Administrator Paul Hoffman said the money already is spent or obligated so the Senate cut actually will mean that another 74 million dollars must come out of the second fiscal year's funds.

Aside from this possibility, the House bill would allow ECA funds to operate at a rate of about 340 million dollars monthly for 10½ months beginning July 1, 1949, while the Senate cut this to about 325 million dollars monthly for the full year.

Soviets Renew Attack on Tito For 'Deals'

London, July 24 (U.P.).—Russia today bitterly assailed its former ally, Yugoslavia, for engaging in "backstage machinations" in 1947 with Britain over Yugoslav territorial and economic demands on Austria.

Moscow Radio said the Soviet attack was contained in a note delivered last Tuesday to Marshal Tito's government.

The note rejected as "crude slander" Yugoslavia's protest of June 22 that the Big Four Foreign Ministers acted at their Paris meeting early in June without considering Yugoslavia's demands on Austria.

"The Soviet Union consistently supported the Yugoslav demands connected with the Australian treaty," the Soviet note said.

It called the Yugoslav protest "nothing but a futile attempt of the Yugoslav government to justify its backstage machinations before the peoples of Yugoslavia.

"As early as 1947 . . . secret negotiations were conducted between a representative of Yugoslavia and the British Minister, Mr. Noel Baker, in Belgrade, as well as between the Yugoslav Ambassador in Britain, Mr. (Ljubo) Leontic, and the British Minister (of State) Mr. (Hector) McNeil in London."

It said the Soviet learned about these talks through a chance conversation in Vienna.

(The same Russian charge of secret Yugoslav-British negotiations, made weeks ago in a press interview by Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov, were denied at the time by the Yugoslavs.)

Strike-Weary British Facing 2 New Disputes

London, July 24 (U.P.).—Strike-weary Britain will be threatened with two more serious labor disputes Monday, just as London dock workers are scheduled to return to the piers.

Delegates for the 450,000 members of the National Union of Railwaymen will meet to discuss action against the Government's refusal of their demands for a $2 a week raise and time and a quarter pay for work on Saturday afternoons.

The Winders Federation of Great Britain, representing 4000 men who operate hoist engines in coal mines, today voted to give the National Coal Board notice they will strike August 22 if their demands for a $7-a-week raise are not granted.

Pope Adjures Women to Halt 'Growing Sensuality of Youth'

Vatican City, July 24 (AP).—Pope Pius XII said tonight that morality is in retreat, and called on Catholic women to halt what he described as the growing "sensuality of youth."

The Pope addressed 15,000 Italian women in St. Peter's Basilica. The Women's Catholic Action Group in Italy, which claims 500,000 members, has been celebrating the fortieth anniversary of its foundation.

In his brief talk the Pope said: "Unfortunately, today morality is in retreat, not only in the city but also in the country, where a desire for luxury and pleasure has spread.

"Contributing not a little to the increase in the sensuality of youth are the press, the radio, the immodesty of the beach, public shows, and the like."

The pontiff said the church has assigned to Catholic women the duty of contributing to healthy social conditions, to a strengthening of faith, and to the moral education of youth.

He urged parents to lead their children toward Christian life through example and without superficiality.

Arms Aid Bill Is Up Today

delighted with the proposal of Senator Vandenberg of Michigan, Republican foreign policy leader, that Congress should provide only "token" interim aid now, waiting until it has more time to examine the full proposal.

Vandenberg advanced the idea Saturday and found influential allies yesterday among legislators including Chairman George (D., Ga.), of the Senate Finance Committee; Representative Vorys (R., Ohio), and Representative James P. Richards (D., S. C.) The two are members of the House Foreign Affairs Committee. Some of the Vandenberg supporters stressed economy, and others the idea that Congress should wait until the Atlantic Pact nations have worked out a full joint military program for Congress to consider.

The White House was aware of the Vandenberg proposal, and of its backing, as well as of widespread predictions that while Congress probably will pass home kind of arms program eventually, his full plan has little chance of passing the Senate this year. But Presidential Press Secretary Charles C. Ross said the program nevertheless will go to Congress about noon today without change. "The (President's) message will be sent up as it was originally written," Ross told reporters.

The legislation will be introduced immediately after the message is received by Representative Kee of West Virginia, Foreign Affairs Committee chairman. In his separate message, the President is expected to ask for the first year:

For arms, technical training and assistance to Atlantic Pact partners—$938,450,000.

To stimulate arms production in Europe—155 million dollars.

For arms and technical training to countries outside the Atlantic alliance—$300,580,000.

Also, 45 million dollars for an emergency fund and 11 million dollars for administration. For the first year, at least, Mr. Truman is expected to ask authorization for the National Military Establishment to act as agent in the purchase of 100 million dollars in arms for the Latin-American countries, but this money would be repaid by the countries concerned.

The President's Foreign Assistance Correlation Committee, which wrote the legislation, is composed of representatives of the State Department, the Economic Cooperation Administration and the National Military Establishment. Their bill provides specifically that the new program shall not alter the Atomic Energy Act of 1946, which forbids the export of atomic weapons.

A draft prepared a month ago—and not altered materially since, according to persons close to the committee—set forth the reasons for the legislation as follows:

"The Congress of the United States hereby finds that the efforts of the United States and other countries to promote international peace and security in accordance with their obligations under the Charter of the United Nations require additional measures of support.

"The Congress recognizes that economic recovery is essential to international peace and security and must be given clear priority. The Congress also recognizes that the increased confidence of free peoples in their ability to resist direct or indirect aggression and to maintain internal security will advance such recovery and support political stability.

"The United States seeks its own security and world peace both by maintaining its national strength and by participating in collective and other arrangements in support of the purposes and principles of the United Nations."

U. S. Expected to Support Plan by France for Arms Census

Lake Success, July 24 (AP).—An important American statement fully backing a French plan for an unprecedented world census of armed forces and armanents is expected here Monday.

Informed sources said the statement will be made to the United Nations Commission for Conventional Armaments by Prof. Frank C. Nash, Georgetown University law professor and a part-time adviser to Defense Secretary Johnson.

Nash and Soviet bloc delegates have clashed in meetings of the commission's working committee on the proposal. The American's statement is expected to give in full the reasons his Government has decided to go along with the plan.

Under the French proposal, approved by the working committee, members of the United Nations would submit to a U. N. organization full information on their order of battle—the number of troops on their rolls, locations of troops, a list of arms and all information pertaining to the size of their armed forces and armaments. In the past such information has been among the most closely-guarded secrets of nations.

The French proposal exempts information on atomic weapons. Egypt, the Soviet Union and the Soviet Ukraine opposed the plan in the working committee.

D. C. Priest Echoes Blast by Spellman

The Right Rev. John K. Cartwright, rector at St. Matthew's Roman Catholic Cathedral, yesterday charged Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt with expressing anti-Catholic prejudice "by indirection, by sly insinuation, by mean reservation, and by every slick device."

In a sermon which was itself a vigorous attack on the former First Lady, Msgr. Cartwright praised Francis Cardinal Spellman for "unveiling the secret intolerance of a very notable public character who has for many years unjustly enjoyed the reputation of tolerance."

Cardinal Spellman assailed Mrs. Roosevelt for her support of the Barden Federal aid to education legislation in a letter released Friday. The cardinal last month blasted the Barden bill, which limits Federal aid to public schools, as "un-American, anti-Catholic" legislation.

Asserting that Mrs. Roosevelt "has made a great point of patronizing minorities," the Washington priest declared that "there is one minority for which she has never said or done anything effective—that is, the Catholic minority."

Msgr. Cartwright declared that Cardinal Spellman's case against Mrs. Roosevelt "is only one case out of many which could have been made against her over a long period of years."

He said that "the good woman was, for as long as it was safe to be so, very sentimental and a little more than tolerant towards the Reds and the Communists and friends of Russia in this country."

In addition, he said that Mrs. Roosevelt, now chairman of the United Nations Commission on Human Rights, had favored the Loyalists "and what honesty would call the Communists or Reds" in the Spanish Civil War, was "against" Archbishop Stepinac, who was persecuted by the Yugoslavian Communists, and failed to "recognize" Joseph Cardinal Mindszenty of Hungary "as a martyr to civilization."

Golden Wedding Date Observed

THE REV. AND MRS. WILLIAM H. HEIGHAM, 902 Langley dr., Silver Spring, recently celebrated their golden wedding anniversary. Dr. Heigham retired 12 years ago after 15 years' ministry at several churches in the Episcopal Diocese of Washington. They have four children and four grandchildren

Mrs. Roosevelt Is Defended By N. Y. Pastor

New York, July 24 (U.P.).—The Protestant pastor of New York's liberal interdenominational Riverside Church joined today in the defense of Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt against Francis Cardinal Spellman's charge that she is anti-Catholic.

Dr. Robert J. McCracken, who succeeded Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick as pastor of one of the city's most famous churches, strongly supported the former First Lady in the current controversy over the Barden Federal aid to education bill which would bar parochial schools from receiving Government funds.

"Mrs. Roosevelt is not universally popular in this country and the cardinal knows it," Dr. McCracken declared in his Sunday morning sermon.

Is Disappointing

"But having read her articles on the Barden bill, which seem to me to have been written with moderation and in a spirit of tolerance, it is disappointing to find the cardinal accusing her of anti-Catholicism, prejudice, want of charity the denial of equality and, at the same time, intimating that with his accusation the controversy is closed."

Cardinal Spellman, in a personal letter to Mrs. Roosevelt on Friday, charged that she was guilty of prejudice and anti-Catholicism in advocating that Federal funds for education should not be allocated to Catholic parochial schools. He said her stand was "unworthy of an American mother."

A spokesman for the cardinal said today he had not seen Dr. McCracken's statement, did not wish to have it read to him, and had no comment.

Lehman Deeply Shocked

Former Gov. Herbert H. Lehman yesterday gave his wholehearted support to Mrs. Roosevelt and said he was "deeply shocked" by the cardinal's accusations.

Dr. McCracken, after enumerating the cardinal's charges, said:

"And this, all because Mrs. Roosevelt has reminded the citizens of this country that many years ago it was decided that tax-supported public schools should be entirely separated from any kind of denominational control, and that those who desire their children to attend parochial schools should be free to set them up, provided they are willing to maintain them."

"Everything about which Cardinal Spellman is exercised—health and transportation services and the free distribution of text books—is available for every child in this country—Jew, Catholic, Protestant—in our public schools," the 45-year-old Scotland-born pastor declared.

"If, because of religious and denominational concern, Jews, Catholics and Protestants establish independent schools and control them, it is right and proper that they should meet the cost of their support."

Churchill to Go to Italy

London, July 24 (U.P.). — Former Prime Minister Winston Churchill will leave for Italy Monday to resume work on his war memoirs.

Lodge Suggests Outsider As GOP Chairman

Senator Lodge (R., Mass.) said yesterday the Republican National Committee ought to go outside its ranks and to a politically-doubtful State for its new chairman.

Lodge, whose friends are talking about him as a possible GOP presidental nominee in 1952, told a reporter he has no candidate to suggest for the post Republican Hugh D. Scott, jr., has said he will vacate August 4.

"I don't think the committee ought to limit its choice to its own membership," the Massachusetts Senator said. "It ought to get the best available man for what should be primarily a managerial job.

"Whoever the chairman is, he ought to come from a politically-competitive State where Republicans have learned that they can't just stand around and shake hands with themselves but have to get out and work to win elections."

Lodge said he doesn't think a member of Congress ought to be chosen to succeed Scott, largely because Senators and Representatives have their hands full taking care of congressional work.

Spies At Lake Success

The series of charges that Communists employed by the United Nations are acting as spies for Russia and even intimidating the U. N. Secretariat must be causing a good deal of embarrassment at Lake Success. The United Nations has set up its headquarters in this country at the invitation of the United States. It has a clear right to employ personnel from all the member countries, including, of course, those under Communist domination. Its work would undoubtedly suffer if the United States should adopt any policy that would narrowly restrict or hamper the free movement and functioning of its employes in this country.

There are, unfortunately, strong indications that a few U. N. employes are acting as Communist spies. The United States cannot be expected to tolerate such conduct without protest. Employes of the United Nations can serve it faithfully only when they forswear all obligations to national governments, as they are required to do. We have no doubt that the great majority of U. N. employes are loyally adhering to this requirement. The difficult question is what shall be done with the few who take advantage of their privileges as U. N. representatives to carry on espionage work for iron-curtain countries. The Department of Justice seems to be proceeding on the theory that they should be tracked down, arrested and tried in American courts as if they had no connection with the U. N. The Russian who was arrested along with Judith Coplon and is soon to be tried for conspiracy with her to obtain secret Government documents is a U. N. employe.

Two years ago Congress laid down a set of rules to guarantee freedom of movement on the part of U. N. employes from other countries. They are not subject to our laws regarding the residence of aliens and may not be deported for any act performed in their official capacity. In case of abuse of their privileges by any activity outside of their official capacity, the law says, they lose their exemption "from the laws and regulations of the United States regarding the continued residence of aliens." This law seems to contemplate that the punishment to be meted out to U. N. employes abusing their privileges here shall be deportation. Any other penalty would serve as a precedent for the seizure and punishment of U. N. employes serving on commissions in other countries and would seriously detract from the climate of freedom that the international peace agency ought to enjoy. Perhaps the best solution would be to ask the U. N. itself to get rid of employes who are shown to be acting as agents of other governments here.

Minimum Wage Bill

Unanimous approval by the Senate Labor Committee of a bill to increase the minimum wage under the Fair Labor Standards Act from 40 to 75 cents per hour indicates that bipartisan support will be given that measure when it reaches the floor of the Senate. Its chances of passage have been greatly improved by elimination of various controversial proposals, such as extension of coverage to several million additional workers, including employes of some retail establishments. The Senate bill does, however, provide minimum wage protection for certain agricultural processing workers in hitherto exempt categories, while retaining the existing overtime exemption for such employes. But it is primarily designed to strengthen the enforcement provisions of existing law, tighten restrictions on the use of child labor, and lift the minimum wage rate to a level roughly equivalent to what it should be in view of the rise in living costs.

The purpose of the existing law is defeated by maintenance of an obsolete substandard minimum rate. The proposed revision is, as the Senate Labor Committee says, an "act of simple economic justice." There is little ground for fearing that the upward pay adjustments required would impose hardship on employers or result in a reduction in employment. For it is estimated that only a million and a quarter workers subject to the act will be affected and the great majority of them are now earning more than 60 cents per hour. Consequently, the mandatory pay increases would be small and restricted in scope.

Although the Senate bill will disappoint the President and those members of Congress who had hoped to secure a more comprehensive measure, it will enlist the support of many others who would have balked at the more ambitious program originally contemplated. In legislation affecting employer-employe relationships, furthermore, it seems wise to approach ultimate objectives step by step instead of leaping for the goal without preliminary exploration of the ground to be covered.

When To Compromise

Members of the House of Representatives are confronted by a delicate question of whether they should compromise to secure enactment of the aid-to-education bill, and, if so, what the compromise should be. It seems evident that supporters of the Barden bill must yield in some respects if the policy of Federal aid to education is to be established. Yet they are determined, quite properly we think, not to permit the use of public funds for the support of sectarian schools. "I can compromise words, figures, phrases, even money," said Representative Barden, author of the education bill in the House, "but on the principle of Federal tax money going to private schools I don't believe the Government, the Supreme Court or myself can compromise."

On Mr. Barden's own statement of the issue he will doubtless have widespread support. Yet it seems to us that he is magnifying minor points to the status of a general principle. The compromise that he is asked to make for the sake of getting any education bill at all through Congress is one of "words," "phrases" and details. The basic principle—the separation of church and State and the denial of public funds for sectarian schools—has been well established by the Constitution and is being actively upheld by the Supreme Court and both houses of Congress. The only question remaining is the very narrow one of precisely where the line shall be drawn in the use of Federal funds for the schools.

The Senate would permit the use of Federal funds for nonsectarian textbooks and bus service for children attending parochial schools if such a policy is sanctioned by State law. Mr. Barden opposes this, but he is ready to accept Majority Leader McCormack's "compromise," which calls for approval of a 35-million-dollar health-aid fund for children in both public and parochial schools before the education bill is brought to a vote. Obviously the health fund should be used for all children, since health is distinct from education. Bus service and nonsectarian textbooks are a little closer to education than health services, but at least they are in a twilight zone, and the Supreme Court has said that such expenditures do not encroach upon the separation of church and state. Some believe that the court will change its mind and bar expenditure of public funds for even these auxiliary services when the issue again arises. Of course, the Thomas bill passed by the Senate would leave the States free to grant or withhold funds for these purposes in deference to the other great principle of local control over education. To our way of thinking the danger of losing the education bill entirely—a danger that Mr. Barden clearly recognizes—is much greater than any danger of misuse of the funds under the Thomas bill.

It is true that Cardinal Spellman's intemperate attacks on Mrs. Roosevelt and Representative Barden have made compromise more difficult. We think a vast majority of people of all faiths will agree with former Governor Lehman of New York in saying that Americans should be free to express their views on public questions without being vilified or accused of religious bias. But the wise legislator will not express his resentment by a standpat attitude. Real statesmanship consists in knowing when to give way on relatively minor issues in order to sustain basic policies and principles. That is the question before the House sponsors of the aid-to-education bill today. They can stand pat and lose the cause for which they have worked so faithfully, or they can win that cause by compromising on phrases and minor details in a way that will leave basic principles intact.

Grade B Thriller

It seems to us that if the atomic conferees had really wanted to hold their famous Blair House Conference of July 14 in utter secrecy, they should have printed themselves a few badges indicating that they were delegates to some imaginary midsummer convention. Then they could have held it in Childs' Restaurant or the dining room of the Hotel Occidental, and nobody, we are sure, would have paid them the slightest attention. Or if they had brought along a few sleepy children and a few dozen suitcases by way of camouflage, they could have held it in utter privacy and security in the concourse at Union Station. But that, of course, was impossible if it was necessary, as it evidently was, for the President to participate in the conference. The rule is that wherever the President goes his Secret Service bodyguard must also go; and while it would have been relatively easy for the conferees to have disguised themselves as visiting firemen or wayworn travelers, the bodyguard would certainly have attracted notice.

The point, however, is that the conferees had no reason to be surprised or disconcerted when they discovered after the end of the conference that the sidewalk outside the Blair House was full of reporters who were full of embarrassing questions and of photographers who had to be warned against taking pictures. Nor had they any reason to be astonished when the newspapers published accounts of what was discussed at the secret meeting. Yet the whole silly pantomime was repeated last Wednesday evening at the meeting at the Capitol over which Senator McMahon presided. The blinds were drawn tight, and the Capitol police were posted outside the committee room.

What's the point of this stagecraft anyway? Everybody acknowledges the right of the Cabinet or the Joint Congressional Committee on Atomic Information to meet in secret if they want to, and as far as we know nobody has tried to crash the gate at such meetings. Everybody knows that a momentous decision must soon be made in relation to the role of Canada and Great Britain in atomic warfare defense. Everybody knows that the atomic bomb is a pretty dangerous toy and that it might have been better all round if the Government had not encouraged the nuclear scientists to let us play with it. Everybody understands that a wrong decision in such a problem as has now been presented might mean the end of civilization and perhaps of the world. But what we find it hard to understand is why an atmosphere of melodrama should make anybody feel safer.

Toward Equal Votes

The decision to let the Lodge-Gossett resolution, approved by the Judiciary Committees of both the House and Senate, go over until next January is the more regrettable because it is not likely to become effective for the next presidential election unless it is passed this year. This is the resolution that would abolish the electoral college and confirm the right of the people to elect the President and Vice President. At present they enjoy that privilege through usage rather than constitutional right—usage that is under increasing challenge. The election of 1948 brought pointedly to the fore the right of electors to thwart the will of the people by whom they have been chosen. In nine States, moreover, the names of presidential and vice presidential candidates do not appear on the ballot. The people vote only for Charlie McCarthys who may or may not accurately echo their master's voice. And the State Legislatures are free to take entirely out of the hands of the people the choice of the electors who choose the President.

Nearly everyone agrees that these defects should be remedied. The controversy over the Lodge-Gossett resolution centers chiefly in its proposal to abolish the practice of giving all of each State's electoral votes to the candidate winning a majority of the popular vote in that State. Messrs. Lodge and Gossett would divide the electoral votes in the exact proportion that popular votes in each State are divided among the various candidates. This has been opposed by some groups on the unsupported assumption that it would cause a splitting up of the major parties. To this another argument was recently added by the Association of the Bar of the City of New York in opposing this aspect of the resolution. The proposed system, the New York lawyers said, might "operate to enhance the influence of the single-party States upon the election results at the relative expense of the States with active bipartisan politics."

To our way of thinking that is one of the strongest arguments in favor of the proposal. It would make our presidential election contests Nation-wide, instead of confining them, as at present, to a few large States in which the parties are almost evenly matched. It is true that voting at present is light in the one-party States. It is light because votes for the minority candidates count for nothing and the majority party takes its victory for granted without putting forth much effort. A presidential election ought to be truly national in scope. Votes for a candidate ought to count for as much in Alabama and Maine as in Ohio and New York. Of course, the large pivotal States are loath to give up the advantage they now hold. But that attitude should certainly not stand in the way of a reform that would correct grave defects in our present electoral system and give voters the nearest approach to an equal voice in election of the President that is feasible under our system.

A Week To Go

So far department store managers report that Washingtonians are not rushing into the shops to beat the sales tax deadline. We are not surprised at this news, for it merely confirms our belief that this modest levy will not have a perceptible effect on the volume of retail sales, especially in view of the liberal exemptions provided under the law. Grumbling there undoubtedly will be when the new taxes go into effect next week, but irritation will be chiefly caused not by the amount of the tax but by the addition of odd cents to the bill of charges. It will be some time before Washington residents become resigned to the minor annoyance of having their pockets and purses bulging with pennies—the inevitable accompaniment of sales taxes.

There will also be extra work for sales clerks and some annoying mistakes will be made at first. But even if sales taxes cause local residents some inconvenience, they should take satisfaction in the thought that the revenue from these taxes will make it possible for the city to pay better wages to its employes and provide funds for District projects that contribute to their own well-being and make the city a better place in which to live.

CABIN OF SILENCE

(A tribute to the Joaquin Miller Cabin in Rock Creek Park)

Like a bird in sweet repose resting from the flight,
Like a folding of the wings nesting with the night.
Closely like a mother, to her breast the earth below
Solitary, till the moon joins you from above
In all her brilliance, abundant love
Of every force unseen.
Cabin of silence, a monument, Joaquin.

Koussevitzky

It was with much chagrin that we learned that the National Symphony Board had turned down the plans of Serge Koussevitzky, the eminent leader of the Boston Symphony. He proposed building a much-needed conservatory and opera house and also to mold a top-ranking symphony orchestra here in Washington.

The board had thus taken it upon themselves to deprive Washington of the potential leadership of the music world. The reason given—financial difficulties.

The board might easily remind us of the difficulty of raising the small budget merely to sustain the National Symphony. They might question Washington's ability to become a music center. However, contrast the half empty house faced by the National Symphony during their regular concerts this past season compared with the full house drawn by the Philadelphia Orchestra and other major orchestras which visited here.

We, as members of the concert-going public, would like to know more of what Mr. Koussevitzky's plans were and why we did not hear of them until they were abandoned. If the public were made fully aware of this exciting project it is our opinion that their full support would be forthcoming.

Home Rule Sop

Count your blessings before accepting home rule as proposed. Washington has never had Commissioners that dishonored their office. We have been free of scandal. Is there another city in the United States that has better city management?

Congress evidently is becoming sensitive about a democratic government that refuses citizen rights to a city of almost one million people. If this home rule law is passed, Congress will be giving us a sop, for it does not give full citizenship.

The District puts into the United States Treasury more money, in time of war, more soldiers and sailors, than many States. The States have representation in Congress. We are denied the privilege of electing a President and the right to elect citizens of the District of Columbia to represent us in Congress. Without this representation, men in Congress who know little about managing the affairs of a big city, could interfere in the affairs of our city. If we had congressional representation, our rights could be defended. Let us keep what we have, not accept half a loaf.

Marshall Heights

While slum clearing in Washington is getting to be a joke, some progress is in sight. Prosecution of greedy landlords who rent miserable shacks at extravagant prices and the decision that water and sewerage should be furnished by the city are worthy of note. However, some of the redevelopment plans of which I have read or heard seem to me to be unreasonable and unworkable.

One complaint, I understand, is the shockingly low value put on the land in condemnation plans. The idea that any land within sight of the District is worth only 2 or 3 cents a square foot is ridiculous.

The decision to let Marshall Heights do its own redevelopment for the present seems wise and prudent. Senator Flanders of Vermont was right in saying that Marshall Heights is not a slum in the real sense of the term. Both the property owners and many other dwellers there have formed their own committees to improve conditions and resist injustices from the outside. Where could they go now if redevelopment should take place?

"First Locust"

Your definition from Webster of "katydids" in your editorial of July 19, is correct, but the insect that we hear singing in the treetops of Washington is not the katydid.

The locust, as it is commonly called, is the insect that is making all the noise and is called the cicada locust. It is larger than the katydid. It has a stout body with a blunt head and large transparent wings. They are noted for the prolonged shrill notes of the male insect, produced by vibrating membranes of special sound organs on the underside of the abdomen. In the old days their singing meant "hotter weather."

The dog-day cicada is heard during dog-days, four to six weeks between early part of July and early September. They then shed their skins, which look like a dried shell. They are also called the 17-year locust and are the insects responsible for the devastation of crops.

Don't blame the poor little katydid, which belongs to the locustidae family, which does not include the locust.

"Excommunication"

Your editorial of July 15, "Excommunication," contains a startling statement to the effect that the anticommunism of the Roman Catholic Church was not strong enough, in World War II, "to induce the Pope to give any sign of approval to Hitler's attack on Russia."

The Roman Catholic bishops of Germany showed their hand clearly in a letter published in the Nazionale Zeitung of September 12, 1936, which pleaded with Hitler to allow Catholics to cooperate with him "in the fight against the ever-increasing threat to the world of Bolshevism, which shows its sinister hand in Spain, Russia and Mexico." Again, in January, 1941, all the German archbishops and bishops, together with their Austrian counterparts, joined in a pastoral letter which declared that "the impending final fight for freedom of the German people will require great sacrifices from everyone, but the victory of Germans arms will guarantee peace for many years to come."

It is true that the Roman Catholic Church had many disagreements with Hitler, but these disagreements were exclusively over what was termed "measures antagonistic to the church." The church remained unmoved by all of Hitler's persecutions, so long as he carried on the main crusade directed against Red Russia.

Your statement that "the Pope" gave no sign of approval to Hitler is absurd. Of course, the Pope himself gave no public and official support to Hitler. His subordinates, whom he controls absolutely, did.

STANLEY LICHTENSTEIN.

85 Years Of "Gradualism"

It has been said that the end of segregation and discrimination will come as a result of education, and the gradual acceptance by the majority the respect for the rights of the minority. This is an old excuse for the continuation of the old order. As long as men are human, there will be prejudice. When the human race gets to the place where it has rid itself of prejudice and self-centered attitudes, there will be no need for law at all.

Had Congress taken into consideration the public sentiment during the 1860s, it never would have extended civil rights to the Negro, when, and as it did, in the District of Columbia. Lincoln expressed the unwillingness of the public to accept the Negro to a delegation of colored men. Making emancipation immediate instead of gradual, Congress went counter to the judgment of the citizens who felt that a community of free Negroes was a peril to society. The rights extended or conferred were:

1862 — District emancipation; forbade exclusion of witnesses on account of color; reorganized jury system, allowing Negroes to serve on juries.

1863—Court system reorganized to protect Negroes who were being thrown into jail as being runaways; the Black Code abolished; made the income of magistrates and constables no longer dependent upon fines and convictions; all justices of the peace put under control of the new Supreme Court of D. C.; Negroes admitted into the military service—two regiments from the District of Columbia were formed; Negroes admitted to the National (then Grover's) Theater.

1864—Colored schools supported from the school tax fund; first colored school opened; repeal of the fugitive slave law; jail management improved.

1865—Congress forbade exclusion from streetcars on account of color; Jim Crow abolished under penalty of forfeiture of charter; Negroes participated in the inaugural parade and ball.

1867 — District suffrage bill passed which provided unrestricted male suffrage for all males 21 years of age, not paupers or criminals, who had resided in the District one year; poll tax abolished; Negroes admitted to the Government service as first class clerks.

1868—The section of the city charter which required city officials to have a property qualification was repealed.

The attitude of white voters was overwhelmingly against Negro suffrage. The voters declared by ballot thus: Washington, 6591 against, 35 for; Georgetown, 712 against, 1 for. Yet the Congress passed the suffrage law, and the Negro voted without incident.

With all these radical changes there were no reported disturbances or riots. Fourteen Negroes were elected as aldermen and 21 to the City Council, from 1868 to 1871, when a new form of municipal government for the District was instituted. The District enjoyed a responsible government during this period, as the record will show.

Being less prepared in the 1860s to assume the responsibilities of full citizenship, the newly freed men did remarkably well in the exercise of their newly obtained rights. In contrast, the refusal to grant full and complete rights to the Negro citizen of the District today is absolutely without justification.

It has been over 85 years since the Negro first became a citizen and was granted the first installment of citizenship rights. This has been a period of "gradual" development and education of the public to accept the Negro. Is the public ready, or does it need 80 more years?

Matter of Fact

By Joseph Alsop

Ohio On The Boil

AFTER VISIBLY PLAYING with the idea of changing his isolationist spots, Senator Robert A. Taft took the lead last week against the Atlantic Pact. In doing so, he almost seemed to go out of his way to mark the difference between himself and his party's world-minded leaders, Senators Vandenberg and Dulles. And now, this week, he will undoubtedly attack the European military aid program with even greater violence.

The event is significant, because this flat reassertion of his isolationism completes the picture of Taft as a political thinker which the Senator will present to the voters in the crucial Ohio election next year. Meanwhile, it is also important that the opposition to Senator Taft is organizing in a novel and very formidable way.

Of course it is not Taft's unyielding isolationism, but his sponsorship of the Taft-Hartley Act, that has caused this development, which began even before the last election. The political arm of the CIO, the Political Action Committee, then shed its fellow travelers and agitprop experts and got down to business under Jack Kroll. At that time, the AFL also organized labor's League for Political Education, under Joseph Keenan.

Since the election, the immensely powerful Railroad Brotherhoods have put their railway labor's Political League on a militant basis, under C. T. Anderson. And what is more important yet, Kroll of the CIO, Keenan of the AFL and Anderson of the Brotherhoods have formed a close political partnership, in which representatives of the big, independent Machinists' Union also participate.

THIS COMPLETELY organized, efficient political unity and militancy of almost all American labor is a brand-new phenomenon, entirely without parallel even in the New Deal years. It will have far-reaching effects everywhere—a good many Dixiecrats, for instance, are likely to turn rueful when they find the Railroad Brotherhoods have joined with the AFL and CIO to destroy them. But the most striking expression of the new labor unity has been in Ohio.

The AFL leaders took the first step in Ohio about a month ago, calling a meeting at Columbus to discuss the local political situation. Over 20 of the chief men in the Ohio CIO, Machinists' Union and United Mine Workers responded to the call. The Washington strategists, Kroll, Keenan and Anderson, all attended. The object was to find a strong candidate to run against Senator Taft in 1950.

The problem was difficult, because of Frank Lausche's decision to run for reelection to the governorship in order to control his State delegation in 1952. Lausche's withdrawal left the State auditor, Joseph Ferguson, an amiable political hack, as the most prominent Democratic candidate. And Ferguson is the sort of politician who runs well for minor offices, but would certainly lose the entire independent vote in a contest with Taft.

At the Columbus meeting, the prospects of Ferguson and about 20 other possible candidates were carefully canvassed. After a long day of continuous debate, the field was slowly narrowed until all had agreed on Murray D. Lincoln, although a registered Republican, has consistently supported Democratic candidates since the beginning of the New Deal. He is the chief man in the Ohio Farm Bureau, a leader of the cooperative movement and of Americans for Democratic Action, an exceedingly effective speaker, and a favorite among the Ohio farmers, whose votes Taft relies on for victory.

AFTER AGREEING among themselves on Lincoln, the labor group leaders approached Ohio's Democratic National Committeeman Albert Horstman and State Chairman Eugene Hanhart. After further discussions, a qualified commitment was secured from Horstman and Hanhart, that the Ohio Democratic regulars would go along with Lincoln if their own man, Ferguson, withdrew. Lincoln himself was approached, and showed great interest, and efforts were begun to persuade Ferguson to get out of the race.

At the moment, the situation is still uncertain, and for a curious reason. Lincoln will surely run if he is sure of regular Democratic support. Secretary of Agriculture Brannan has urged him to do so. But President Truman's political strategists in the Democratic National Committee are somewhat cold to the whole plan, and have not done what is needed with Ferguson or the other Ohio Democrats. It makes the Truman regulars almost as nervous, to see labor assert its political power, as it ought to make the Republicans and Dixiecrats.

The chances are, however, that Lincoln will open up as a candidate in a Labor Day speech. And if this is to be the pattern of the Ohio election, and Lincoln defeats Taft in the end, then American politics will also acquire a new pattern thereafter. History has a way of playing nasty jokes. And it may be that the principal long-range result of the Taft-Hartley Act will be the emergence of an American equivalent of the British Labor Party.

A Communication

Board Of Trade And District Home Rule

Recently there have been two specific plans for District self-government: the Auchincloss bill, before the Congress last year, and the Kefauver bill, which has passed the Senate and is now pending before the House of Representatives.

We have been somewhat surprised by the most articulate local source of opposition to these specific plans—The Washington Board of Trade. We would expect this group to be in the forefront of the campaign for local self-government Apparently, the opposite is true.

The most recent expression of the board's opposition to the Kefauver home rule bill is contained in a statement of the board's spokesman to a subcommittee of the House District Committee on July 14, 1949. The board's opposition to the Kefauver bill is plain enough. The reasons for that opposition presented by the board's spokesman are not so plain.

AT THE OUTSET of his statement, the board spokesman told the House committee that "local" suffrage in the District cannot be effective unless the people of the District also have full representation in the Congress of the United States." The spokesman said later in his statement that any proposal for local self-government in the District in order to obtain the support of the Board of Trade must have as one of its essential features voting representation in Congress and the right to vote for President and Vice President."

What reasons were given for this uncompromising statement? The committee to which this statement was addressed was told that the 1948 platforms of the Republican and Democratic Parties promised that "the citizens of this District should have representation in the Senate and House of Representatives, presidential electors in the electoral college and, if that participation in our Government was granted, then that our citizenry should assume the rights and responsibilities of the franchise in the election of a local government, but not otherwise. (Emphasis supplied.)

The 1948 Republican platform stated: "We favor self-government for the residents of the Nation's Capital."

The 1948 Democratic plantform stated: "We favor the extension of the right of suffrage to the people of the District of Columbia."

How the board's spokesman could distill his interpretation of the party platforms out of the words of the platforms escapes us.

WE SEARCH the spokesman's statement in vain for further reasons why national representation and vote in national elections must precede or accompany local self-government. It may be that no further reasons were stated because no further reasons exist. In fact, history and common sense lead to the opposite conclusion: local self-government is the logical first step.

We learn to walk before we run; a house is built from the ground up, not from the roof down. The people of the Thirteen Colonies learned to govern themselves at home before they formed a national government. Our Western States were admitted to the Union and awarded representation in Congress only after they had seryed an apprenticeship as self-governing Territories. There is every reason to begin local self-government now without awaiting the tortuous processes necessary to amend the Constitution and provide the national representation which the board of trade demands. Long postponement of home rule is the only thing to be accomplished by the board's demand.

The board's spokesman voiced numerous subsidiary objections to the specific bill which the Congress is now considering. Able representatives of both parties have labored diligently to draft a bill which would provide effective local self-government for the District of Columbia. No group of men on earth could draft a home-rule bill to satisfy those who are unalterably opposed to municipal government here by popular vote.

The proposal which these able Congressmen have drafted provides for a referendum of the people to determine whether that specific home-rule bill should be adopted. Those who oppose home rule will have every opportunity to persuade the voters to reject home rule. We believe that the time has come to let the people of the District have their say. It has been a long time since James Madison said of the people of Washington: "A municipal legislature for local purposes, derived from their own suffrages, will, of course, be allowed them."

Congressmen for Home Rule

people who have a primary interest in property should have a voice in setting the tax rate. So long as reasonable safeguards for the Federal interest are present, I'm for such a measure."

Abraham A. Ribicoff (D., Conn.), former member of Hartford's charter revision committee:

"I'm for it. I find it rather amazing that a city of this size has no say in running its own business. I'm sure there are brains and talent here to run the city better than Congressmen can, operating by remote control."

Chase Going Woodhouse (D., Conn.), a member of the Seventy-ninth Congress as well as the Eighty-first:

"Of course I'll vote for it, for two reasons. It gives the House one whole day a week extra to do some work and it is only reasonable for a city of this size to handle its own affairs."

John A. McGuire (D., Conn.), former town clerk of Wallingford:

"I've been in municipal politics for 16 years. From my observations down here, it's a pretty slow process to get anything done. Almost anything would be better than the present set up, it seems to me."

Foster Furcolo (D., Mass.):

"I'm for home rule in principle, of course. It's a sound idea here in Washington, too."

Representative Lane (D., Mass.), absent because of illness when the Auchincloss bill was up last year, told The Post he had "never seen or read" the Kefauver bill. He added:

"That's one of the troubles with us fellows here in Congress—we're too busy with national matters. I'd want to know the whole situation both ways before voting."

From last year's two House roll calls, plus the vote on the special rule which brought the measure to the House floor, those for and against home rule are as follows:

For:

Hale (R., Me.), Merrow (R., N. H.), Cotton (R., N. H.), Plumley (R., Vt.), Sadlak (R., Conn.), Lodge (R., Conn.), Patterson (R., Conn.), Fogarty (D., R. I.), Heselton (R., Mass.), Philbin (D., Mass.), Donohue (D., Mass.), Rogers (R., Mass.), Bates (R., Mass.), Goodwin (R., Mass.), Herter (R., Mass.), Kennedy (D., Mass.), McCormack (D., Mass.), Wigglesworth (R., Mass.).

Against:

Fellows (R., Me.), Forand (D., R. I.), Nicholson (R., Mass.).

A check of several of those members who voted for home rule last year showed all intend to do so again, if given an opportunity on the House floor.

Forand said he would have to read the new bill before deciding whether he would again oppose home rule. Two of those listed above—one as for (Cotton) and one as against (Fellows)—votec only on the rule to bring up the bill.

on one check. The lunches run from 75 cents to a dollar each. Is the check tax exempt?

A. It is because the individual meals are below $1.26. Time spent in computing the price of each meal could be saved, however, if separate checks are used.

Q. If a meal over $1.25 is purchased at a drivein, is a tax levied?

A. Yes. The tax is on meals consumed on any part of the land under the control of the restaurateur.

Q. Are meals taken in a hotel dining room and put on the hotel bill taxable? Are meals delivered on room service taxable?

A. Yes, in both cases, if over $1.25 each. The charge for room service is subject to tax, too.

Dog Food Taxable

Q. Is dog food taxable?

A. Yes. It is not considered food for human consumption.

Q. What items at the grocery store are taxable?

A. Soap, starch, cleaning materials, floor wax, waxed paper, paper napkins, brooms and mops. If you want to be sure the tax is levied property, segregate such items for the clerks.

Q. Will the sales tax be placed on individual drinks or the total bar tab?

A. Either way. If you are drinking beer and it costs less than 14 cents, pay for each drink and save the tax. If your drinks are over 14 cents each, pay on the entire tab—the breakage will be on your side.

Q. If you use soda fountain coupons to pay for meals are they tax exempt?

A. Yes, in effect, unless you consume more than $1.25 at one sitting.

Q. The check for an evening at the night club totals $10, including a $3 cover charge and $3 for two dinners. How much sales tax is due?

A. Twenty cents. The cover charge is taxable unless separately stated. The same applies to an entertainment charge. If the dinner totaled less than $1.26 each, it would be exempted.

Q. My children wish to operate a lemonade stand during summer vacation. Must they collect a sales tax on large sales?

A. Yes, if the stand is a regular, day to day operation. They must obtain a sales tax certificate and if Daddy decides to clean out the stock totaling more than $1.25, a tax is collected. Otherwise, there would be no tax.

Post Presents Second In Series on New Taxes

The Washington Post today presents the second of a series of eight articles describing the sales tax and other new taxes that go into effect August 1. The articles have been reviewed for accuracy by responsible District Government officials.

The Washington Post has arranged with Sales Tax Administrator Allan F. Brooke for replies to sales tax questions submitted in writing by readers. Address Sales Tax Editor, The Washington Post, Washington 4, D. C. Replies will be printed in The Washington Post as rulings are received from the District Building. It will not be possible to acknowledge individual letters.

Poll Tax Bill Is Up Today

By The Associated Press

The first slight easing of the civil rights log jam in Congress is in prospect today when an anti-poll-tax bill comes up for expected passage in the House.

It would abolish payment of poll taxes as a prerequisite to voting for President, Vice President or members of Congress in either general or primary elections.

The bill also would prohibit a tax or charge on voter registration. This provision is aimed directly at State substitution of such special registration laws.

Passage of the bill today would mark the fifth time in the past 10 years that the House has acted favorably on this type of legislation.

Anti-poll-tax measures have been killed regularly in the Senate through filibuster or committee inaction.

The Senate fate of the present bill may prove no exception, its supporters concede.

Roosevelt, Jr., Plans Survey

New York, July 23 (U.P.).—Representative Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr., a blue-blood Democrat, and Jacob K. Javits, Republican, born on the lower East Side, announced today they are sponsoring a survey in New York City to find out if democracy can correct its own ills.

The two Representatives, one the son of a President, the other the son of a tenement dweller, are co-chairmen of the non-partisan West Side Committee on Civil Rights. Under their direction a community self-audit on civil rights is being made.

The survey is covering a section of the city stretching from 59th st. to 138th st., west of Central Park.

The first question being asked concerns medical care. Volunteer canvassers, under the direction of professional researchers and social scientists, are asking every resident whether he is getting adequate medical care.

Government Sales Present Tax Question

District officials are studying the question whether Government units will collect a sales tax on sales of water, publications or even meals in the Senate dining room.

Government units are clearly exempted from the sales tax on materials purchased by them, but the revenue act and the sales tax regulations do not cover sales by them.

A conference will be held in the District Building today by Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West with his two assistants, Harry L. Walker and George C. Updegraff, on the matter. The tax goes into effect next Monday.

The city legal staff also is mulling over whether to exempt funeral directors' services from the sales tax. Involved is the question whether materials used in conducting funerals constitute an "inconsequential element" in the total fee charged.

Meal Checks Studied

A proposed ruling on meal checks also is under consideration. Officials of the Hotel Association of Washington and the District Restaurant Association are reviewing the proposal that would permit issuing one check for a party at a table, dividing the total charge by the number present and considering the average figure as the tax base.

This would eliminate the necessity of issuing separate checks to groups eating at the same table. If the average arrived at was below $1.26, no tax would be charged. If over, the tax would added to the entire check.

The printed copies of the sales tax regulations are scheduled to arrive late today. Thirty thousand copies have been ordered for distribution from Room 210, District Building.

Sales Tax Administrator Allan F. Brooke announced a staff of information personnel has been stationed in the room to answer inquiries. The office telephone is NAtional 6000, extension 735.

First payment of sales tax is due September 20 and the forms to be used in submitting the funds will be distributed to merchants on September 1, Brooke said. Payment may be made by checks or money orders.

6500 Ask Certificates

Thus far about 6500 of the city's estimated 20,000 retailers have applied for certificates of registration. A fine up to $100 may be levied against persons who do not receive the certificate by next Monday. Application blanks may be obtained from any bank, police precinct, firehouse or at the District Building.

In addition, Brooke urged retailers to obtain and fill out certificates of resale, permitting them to purchase goods from wholesalers or distributors without payment of the sales tax. The certificate of registration number is necessary for such forms so the retailer may be charged a sales tax by the wholesaler unless he obtains the former, Brooke pointed out. A separate copy is required for each wholesaler with whom a retailer deals.

About 50 of the estimated 1500 semipublic institutions have completed exemption affidavits. Brooke declared they will be charged the tax unless they obtain the forms before making purchases.

More than 2000 applications for exemptions from payment of tax on utilities and fuels have been completed, he said.

Almost 400 out-of-town applications for "use tax" registrations have been received, including about 200 from dealers in nearby Maryland and Virginia. The "use tax" is charged against District residents on purchases made outside Washington at the same rate and manner as the sales tax.

Many applicants were firms selling materials to stores here for their own use, such as brooms, cleaning and wrapping materials. The largest applicant was Sears, Roebuck & Co., which will collect the "use tax" on orders sent to local residents.

Disposing of $28,000 Jackpot Proves Almost Full-Time Job

about the North Pole. I'd rather go to Richmond on a bus."

And about the Latin trip: "What in the hell does a postal clerk want to go down to Caracas for? You are supposed to spend a week in Caracas, then go over to the Hotel Nacional at Havana and be the guest there another week of 'Happy Joe'—whoever he is."

A Matter of Income Tax

Also, "there seems to be a question about paying income taxes" on the $2500 at which the trips are valued. Noone called the Internal Revenue Bureau and they said he didn't. But he consulted a lawyer and he said he did. A postal clerk is not in a position to take the financial chance.

He would like to sell the trips and an Albany, N. Y., doctor who is interested in Arctic meteorology and heard the program the night Noone won made him an offer for the North Pole jaunt. Noone eagerly contacted the awarding people: The trips are non-transferable, he said they told him.

Six other families—all but one related to Noone—are sharing the "$28,000" jackpot equally. None of them want to go to the North Pole or Caracas, either.

Plotted for a Year

The families, hoping to make their financial situation rosier, devoted a year to doping out how to get on the program and win. The great joy that was in April when Noone finally made it has turned to sharp disillusionment in July.

"It has been a very, very trying time," Noone said, "trying to convert that $28,000 into something tangible."

The families have finally decided to put most of the prizes on the auction block—probably August 10. Now reposing at the shop of Adam A. Weschler & Son, auctioneers, 905 E st. nw., are:

A $1000 living room suite, two dining room suites valued at $1000, a $1000 bedroom suite, three rugs valued at $1000, a $985 television set, $1000 worth of books—"somebody said they were fiction," said Noone, unhappily. "I wouldn't know—I'm not going down there until auction day," a $2000 diamond ring, a $2000 diamond wristwatch, and most of $1000 worth of luggage.

Takes Time and Money

Noone has found himself spending all his spare time—and not a trifling sum of money—dispatching telegrams and making long-distance calls trying desperately to arrive at cash settlements for some of his other prizes, he says, and trying to find out what the devil happened to still others.

He was supposed to get a complete home gymnasium for himself and another one for an organization he designated. He awarded the latter to the Greenbelt Boys Club.

This generosity, it appears, was premature.

Despite several telephone calls to the donating gym-outfit company in New York, plus telegrams and registered letters, the most he's got, he claims, is a promise to send their catalog along—and this hasn't arrived. He has taken it up with the radio-program people, he says, and they've promised to investigate.

Too Long on Shorts

Another particularly trying prize was a $1000, five-year supply of men's knitwear. This is too many sweaters even for all the men in Noone's and his relatives' families.

"So I wrote them," he said, "and asked about settling it for cash. They wrote back and said that might be arranged—what did I think would be a fair deal?

"Being new at the game, I wrote back that I thought for $1000 worth of sweaters, four or five hundred dollars would be a decent settlement. 'Way out of line,' they wrote back. One hundred dollars would be a good deal—anyhow it was their top offer.

"This made me so mad that we wrote right back telling them to send their catalog—and we're going to insist that we really get one thousand bucks worth of sweaters."

Some Are Very Nice

Some of the companies, he said, were very nice. Like the one which gave $500 worth of free laundry for a year and settled in cash for $200. Many of the $1000 worth of shirts, at $3.65 value apiece, he sold around the neighborhood for $2 apiece.

Noone says the seven families will be more than satisfied now if their $28,000 finally turns into $7000 cash—a total of $1000 a family.

Sharing families besides his are Mrs. Mary Malarkey, 15 D Ridge rd., Greenbelt, his wife's mother; Mrs. Anne Brockway, same address, and Mrs. Philip Quinn, 12 Needle Green sw., his wife's sisters; John Malarkey, 3511 13th st. nw., and Eugene Malarkey, Girardville, Pa., his wife's brothers; and Carl Mahler, jr., 3410 B st. se., a co-worker at the Washington postoffice.

Noone is still glad he won the prize. But he says in harried tones:

"When you associate yourself with $28,000 it sounds like a lot. But when it's in prizes and you start digesting them . . . they have got you over a barrel."

Music Is Stopped To Tune of $23,500

New York, July 24 (AP).—Clarence Hathorn, 50-year-old insurance agent of Louisville, Ky., tonight won $23,500 in prizes by correctly identifying a radio mystery melody.

The father of two children, he identified the tune on the American Broadcasting Company's "Stop the Music" program. The tune was "Oh, No, We Never Mentioned Her."

Fellowships Awarded to 2 Journalists

New York, July 24 (AP).—The Council of Foreign Affairs today announced the award of its first resident fellowships to Henry R. Lieberman, 32, New York Times correspondent in China, and Robert Clurman, 29, former United Press bureau manager in Nanking and Calcutta.

The followships are for study and reasearch at council headquarters here, and at nearby universities for the 1949-50 academic year. Stipends will correspond with salaries relinquished during the period. The two newsmen will have wide latitude in choosing the studies they will pursue.

Clurman now is assigned to the UP's foreign desk.

In announcing the awards, the council said the fellowships were open to American newspaper, radio and magazine correspondents now serving abroad, or who have recently served abroad and plan to return to foreign posts.

The council announced the purpose of the fellowships was "to give men who have been preoccupied with meeting deadlines an opportunity to broaden their perspective by means of a coordinated program of reading, study and informal discussion."

The selections were made by the council's advisory committee on fellowships, composed of Walter Kerr, the New York Herald Tribune; Eugene Meyer, The Washington Post; Shepard Stone, the New York Times; Joseph Barber, Council on Foreign Relations; Gardner Cowles, Look Magazine; John K. Jessup, Fortune Magazine; Grayson Kirk, Columbia University, and Edward Murrow of the Columbia Broadcasting System.

Incumbent Charles A. Callahan is opposed by William E. Sellers for commissioner of revenue. Callahan, 56, was appointed to the office in 1944 on the death of his father, under whom he had served as deputy for 20 years. The father held the office since 1898. Callahan lives at 15 West Rosemont ave.

ployed for 30 years. This is his first filing at politics. A trained bookkeeper and accountant, he has been a public tax auditor for 15 years. His home is at 106 E. Del Ray ave.

City Sergt. J. Frank Moriarty also is opposed by a newcomer to politics in his attempt to win election to the post to which he was appointed last April. His opponent is Hugh Travers, former assistant manager of the State Alcoholic Beverage Control store in Alexandria.

Was Deputy Sergeant

Moriarty, who is 51, was deputy sergeant for 19 years prior to his appointment following the death of City Sergt. Claude Fletcher. His home is at 1907 Commonwealth ave.

Travers, who lives at 1206 N. Pitt st., resigned from his ABC position last spring to campaign for city sergeant. He has been a volunteer fireman for 15 years. He is 36.

Five other incumbents, all unopposed, have been declared the nominees of the Democratic Party and their names will not appear on ballots.

They are State Delegate Armistead L. Boothe, Commonwealth's Attorney Howard W. Smith, jr., City Treasurer Roger C. Sullivan, Civil and Police Court Judge James R. Duncan and Juvenile and Domestic Relations Court Judge Marion B. West.

ARLINGTON

Arlington's unopposed Democratic aspirants are State Delegates J. Maynard Magruder and George Damm and County Board Member Basil M. De Lashmutt, all seeking re-election. Their names will appear on the ballot.

FAIRFAX

Three candidates are vying for the Democratic nomination for delegate in Fairfax, with two in the race for Republican approval. Incumbent Robert J. McCandlish is not running.

Democrats are Edwin Lynch, W. Lewis Leigh and John J. McLaughlin. Republicans are Kent Godfrey and Douglas A. Clark.

Lynch, a 36-year-old real estate salesman, served in the House in 1946 and 1947. He was nosed out of the Democratic nomination in 1947 by McCandlish by a one-vote margin in a recount after earlier tabulations had placed him the winner by the same margin. His home is in Annandale.

Leigh, an Oakton attorney, was deputy commissioner of revenue from 1932 to 1942 and assistant Commonwealth's attorney for the next four years. He is a member of the School Trustee Electoral Board. He is 41.

50 Indorsers

Educators, Newsmen, Back Miller

By The Associated Press

A group of about 50 persons, many of them newspapermen and educators issued a statement yesterday announcing their support of Francis Pickens Miller for Governor of Virginia.

Miller is one of four candidates seeking the Democratic nomination in the August 2 primary.

The signers include three acting and one emeritus dean of Virginia colleges and universities, the president and immediate past president of the Virginia Social Science Association, and a former president of the Virginia Academy of Science.

An announcement from Miller's campaign headquarters in Charlottesville said all subscribed to the statement on invitation of Dr. Robert Douthat Meade, head of the history department of Randolph-Macon Woman's College at Lynchburg.

In another development, Sidney S. Kellam, campaign manager for John S. Battle, disputed the contention of Ed P. Phillips, campaign manager for Horace H. Edwards, that Edwards would carry Virginia's Seventh District.

Replying to Phillips, Kellam said: "Almost every informed observer states what you and Mr. Edwards must know. Your candidate will run third in the race.

Kellam also said a recent release of Phillips' which said the Rockingham County Board of Supervisors has indorsed Edwards is "an indication of your desperation."

"There is no record of this having been done," said Kellam. "Four of the five supervisors are in California, and the fifth publicly stated he will not vote for Mr. Edwards, but announced he will vote for Mr. Johnson, the Republican candidate. Three of the five members of the board are Republicans.

"The fight in the Seventh District is between Battle and Miller."

Meanwhile, Bolling Lambeth, Commonwealth's attorney of Bedford County, announced his support of Edwards, and Delegate T. Monroe Bates of Wise County declared "an overwhelming tide has set in for Horace Edwards for Governor."

Bates, 9th District manager for Edwards, said: "The grass roots movement for Edwards has set in in a big way. The people have tired of the Arnold-Battle-Miller bickering and name-calling. They are swinging to Horace Edwards because he has a progressive program for Virginia, because they know he has the executive ability to properly run the State.

"They know that his interest in public education is deep-seated, and he will cause improvement in our schools. They know he has the dignity and courage which should be prerequisites of a Governor of Virginia."

Edwards rested at Bristol yesterday, and wil campaign today in Smyth and Washington Counties.

In Richmond, State campaign headquarters for Remmie L. Arnold, the fourth Democratic candidate, announced two additional campaign aides.

A. D. White of Clifton Forge, a retired yardmaster of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad, will direct the Arnold campaign in his home city and surrounding area.

Howard L. Bryant of Boykins will be Arnold's campaign manager in Southampton County. Bryant is a farm implement dealer and a farmer.

Elk Dies After Convention Drink Of Cleaning Fluid

Chicago, July 24 (AP).—A Tacoma, Wash., furrier who possibly drank carbon tetrachloride, thinking it was water, died early today.

He was Luke Scholl, 55, Tacoma. Police said his wife, Louise, told them her husband and some fellow Elks were squirting carbon tetrachloride through water pistols during an Elks convention in Cleveland July 13. She said Scholl drank a glassful by mistake.

When they checked in a Chicago hotel to attend Shrine convention in Chicago last week, Scholl complained of feeling ill. He was taken to a hospital Friday.

The cause of death was given as carbon tetrachloride poisoning.

Fair Practices Code Urged for Hill Units

The National Lawyers Guild suggested a code of fair practices for Congressional committees yesterday.

It proposed as one safeguard that persons whose reputations may be hurt by the testimony of others before such committees should be given advance notice, whenever practicable, that such testimony is coming. If this is done, the Guild said, the person whose reputation is in danger can reply in time to "catch up" with the accusation against him.

Survey Urges More Expense On Highways

By the United Press

Traffic congestion has become so bad that motorists should be spending more of their dollars for highways and less for automobiles themselves, the Brookings Institution said yesterday.

The conclusion was included in a study by Wilfred Owens, an institute specialist, on automobile trends and problems. It dealt with the cost and quality of auto transportation and analyzed "significant factors" governing the future of the automobile.

Unless more money is put into highways, it said, "operating costs may so offset savings from technological improvements in motor vehicle manufacture that benefits to the consumer will be greatly reduced or nullified."

Owens said the first step toward better roads should be to make better use of existing highways and highway revenues. Secondly, he said there should be a better balance between spending for automobiles and spending for highways.

"At present only 5 to 10 cents of the highway transportation dollar is applied to the provision of highways," he explained, "the remainder being absorbed by vehicle purchase, gasoline and other operating items.

"This division appears highly questionable wherever the highway system is inadequate, since excessive cost of vehicle operation may result from the accidents, congestion and inefficiencies of driving on inadequate roads."

Lower Support Prices Held Vital For Egg Control

By the United Press

Unless support prices are lowered the Agriculture Department fears it may have to buy up more than 10 per cent of all the eggs laid next year.

It figured yesterday that continuance of present high supports would cause a tremendous expansion in egg output. As a result, officials think it is "not unlikely" that price support purchases in 1950 would run between 5,400,000,000 and 7,200,000,000 eggs.

That would require a Federal outlay of about 200 million to 250 million dollars, and the Government now has no idea of how it could get rid of the eggs.

These official estimates and forebodings came to light in the wake of House passage of a bill which would prevent lowering of supports for eggs and other major commodities next year.

6 Months' Buying Of Locomotives 25-Year Record

Purchase of new locomotives by the railroad industry during the first six months of this year broke all records for the last quarter century, the Association of American Railroads said yesterday.

The Class 1 carriers (those doing one million dollars or more gross business annually) put 1010 new engines into service, largest number for any six months since 1923. The new locomotives included 969 Diesels and 41 steam. The installations in the first six months of 1948 totaled 620.

As of July 1, the industry had 1127 additional locomotives on order.

The freight car installations for the first six months of 1949 came to 55,158, highest since 1925.

Trial Examiner Rebukes Denham On T-H Ruling

NLRB Trial Examiner Horace A. Ruckel accused General Counsel Robert N. Denham yesterday of a "strained" interpretation of the Taft-Hartley Law.

If upheld, he said, Denham's ruling would "tend to destroy union security although obviously that was not the intent of Congress."

Ruckel urged dismissal of unfair-practice charges Denham filed against the Union Starch and Refining Co., Granite City, Ill., and the AFL American Federation of Grain Billers in the discharge of three employes under a legal union-shop agreement.

The employes, John and Nellie Ralph and Mary Rawlings, offered to pay $14 as the equivalent to their initiation fee and two months' dues in the union, but declined to take any obligation of union membership.

Denham ordered the workers reinstated, contending the Taft-Hartley Act permits discharge of employes only for nonpayment of dues.

HIGH-JINKS—For three hours, Stephen Franczak, 33, a factory worker, cavorted atop a 300-foot radio tower in Minneapolis, giving police and his family a bad time, all over the bet of a glass of beer. Sceuch, who had hurried to the resort community from Washington when notified of the tragedy. The grandfather's body was not found.

Police said Everly had rented a cottage and motor launch at the resort. He took it downstream with his wife, anchored it and dived into the water. After swimming for a few minutes, he began to flounder and call for help. His wife, police said, was unable to reach him in time to prevent his drowning.

Cryer had been fishing with friends near the Morgantown bridge on Route 301, police reported. After the party stopped fishing, he went to swim. He sank and drowned before members of his party on the nearby bank could get to him, police learned. His body was recovered by Maryland State Police.

Peacoe, who drowned in Georgetown Channel, had been swimming about midstream in 80 feet of water just above Three Sisters Island, according to police.

His companion, Harold Sloop, 19, of Henderson, N. C., who can not swim, told police Peacoe suddenly went under water at about 2 p. m. and did not reappear. Sloop immediately ran for help.

Harbor Policemen Lawrence Halstead and William J. Cryer recovered the body at 3:45 p. m. The youth was visiting a brother, Okey Peacoe of Falls Church, over the weekend, police said.

Years of Warmer Summers Seen For British Isles

London, July 24 (U.P.).—Britain's abnormally warm summer brought qualified reports today that this usually cold, fog-bound island should prepare for years of warmer weather.

Weather experts ventured cautious private opinions that Britain might face a succession of unusually hot summer, early springs and short winters.

Meteorologists agreed the milder weather could be attributed to the northward retreat of the polar belt.

Professor Gordon Manley of the University of London, a noted authority on weather, said warmer summers and shorter winters may be anticipated for perhaps 15 years.

No Philanthropic Letup

New York, July 24 (U.P.).—Large sums are still being donated for philanthropic purposes, the John Price Jones Co., revealed today in a study which showed that $173,547,770 was given away by wealthy individuals between July 1, 1948 and June 30, 1949.

Lewis Target Of Robertson Investigation

By The Associated Press

Senator Robertson (D., Va.) said yesterday he wants to find out whether John L. Lewis originated the proposal that the coal industry name a chief negotiator to deal with him.

The Senator said he hopes to get the answer at a Senate Banking Committee investigation of the industry's operations and the activities of Lewis' United Mine Workers union. The inquiry starts tomorrow.

Robertson also told a reporter he intends to get all the information he can on the recent Lewis order which put most of the Nation's coal miners on a three-day week.

Robertson has stated the committee is seeking to learn whether the public interest "requires protection from labor monopolies." He said legislation along that line will be recommended if the evidence warrants.

The committee will get testimony first from leading coal industry officials. Lewis, in fact, has not been invited to testify.

"He will be welcome if he wants to come in later on," Robertson said, "but I have no present plans to ask him."

Tobin Would Add To Hoover Plans For Department

Secretary of Labor Maurice J. Tobin yesterday indorsed the Hoover Commission's recommendations for "rebuilding" his department, but said they did not go far enough.

His views were expressed in a statement filed with Chairman John L. McClellan (D., Ark.) of the Senate Executive Expenditures Committee.

The group is studying a reorganization plan submitted by President Truman to transfer the Bureau of Employment Security from the Federal Security Agency to the Labor Department.

This was one of eight transfers recommended by the Government Reorganization Commission headed by Herbert Hoover to restore the Labor Department to its former status.

Tobin is expected to testify at a committee hearing today.

Bride, 93, Flies High; Spouse Stays in Buggy

Malone, N. Y., July 24 (AP).—Ninety-three-year-old Mrs. Liza Murray McGee, a bride of a year, took her first airplane trip today and exclaimed afterward that "It was just like a ride into heaven."

But her husband, 38-year-old Clarence McGee, declined to make the flight, electing instead to remain near a buggy in which the family rode to the airport from their farm in nearby Brushton.

"Clarence is mighty scared of going any higher than the seat of his buggy," Mrs. McGee said.

Fouled Parachute Causes Death of Ace

Shreveport, La., July 24 (U.P.).—Capt. Frank P. McIntire, jr., World War II ace, was killed last night when he apparently tried to bail out of an Air Force F-80 "Shooting Star."

His parachute fouled on the disabled jet plane.

Capt. McIntyre, a member of a prominent Savannah, Ga., family, was flying home from Leigh Air Force Base, Nev., for his aunt's funeral when he radioed that his plane was running out of fuel.

Health Project

Navy Finds Few Workers Tubercular

Five of every 1000 civilian employes of the Navy have shown evidence of tuberculosis in routine photofluorographic examinations, the Navy reported today.

In addition, the report of the Navy Medical Department showed that another three of every thousand examined showed evidence of other chest diseases, such as lung tumors and heart disease.

The tuberculosis and other diseases were uncovered before the workers were aware of their presence, it was stated. They were detected in the taking of a total of 262,341 photofluorographic examinations routinely performed on Navy civilian personnel between March, 1948, and June, 1949.

The screening program was launched by a directive issued in December, 1947, to protect the health of Naval and civilian workers, increase efficiency, and contribute to the national effort in the control and eradication of tuberculosis.

Treatment was offered those employes found infected, in many cases months before symptoms would have prompted a visit to the doctor, the medical report stated.

Hawaii Governor Discusses Strike With Both Sides

Honolulu, July 24 (AP).—In a new effort to settle Hawaii's paralyzing 85-day-old stevedore strike, Gov. Ingram M. Stainback today conferred for about an hour and a half at his home with a small group of employers and strike leaders.

Spokesmen for the employers and the CIO International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union confirmed that the Governor had called them in. But they said any other information would have to come from the Governor, who was unavailable.

(The San Francisco Chronicle said it had reached the Governor by telephone and quoted him as stating, "I'm not too encouraged as a result of this meeting. But I hope something can be done to end this crippling strike.")

Woman Dies as Ship Sinks Anglers' Boat

Boston, July 24 (AP).—An 8000-ton freighter today rammed and split in two a 40-foot party-fishing boat in Boston Harbor, killing a 42-year-old woman and injuring 19 other persons.

The victim was Mrs. Mary D. Giovannio, of Waltham. She and the injured were aboard the smaller vessel.

The Weather Bureau said the weather was "perfect." A veteran Coast Guard officer said he "couldn't understand how the collision happened."

Scores Listed As Victims of Aegean Quake

Istanbul, Turkey, July 24 (AP).—Rescue parties today brought aid to victims of a violent earthquake that smashed ancient villages and panicked thousands along the shores of the Aegean Sea late yesterday near Izmir, Turkey's second largest port. Unofficial reports said scores were killed.

(The quake hit also the Greek island of Khios, 12 miles off the Turkish coast, injuring at least 20 there, Athens officials reported.)

The Aegean seacoast town of Karaburun, at the entrance to the estuary leading to Izmir, was reported hardest hit. First reports said more than 100 houses were demolished by the earth shock in Karaburun, which has a population of 7000.

Mayer is the highest-paid executive in the motion picture industry. Last year he received $733,024 as managing director of production at MGM, Loew's movie-making subsidiary.

Plan to Wed Murphy Told

New York, July 24 (U.P.).—Mary Joan Cuddihy, 30, daughter of a New York publisher, said today that she and the late Supreme Court Justice Frank Murphy had made "definite plans for marriage" before his death last week.

Miss Cuddihy returned to her Forest Hills, N. Y., home today from Michigan, where she attended Murphy's funeral at Harbor Beach on Friday.

"There were definite plans for marriage," she said, but she refused to disclose the date or other details.

Murphy died last Tuesday in Detroit at the age of 59.

Miss Cuddihy is the daughter of Arthur Cuddihy, an official of Funk & Wagnalls Publishing Co. She lives with her family in Forest Hills.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

The quiz programs are overlooking the case of Lloyd Marshall as a topic. They could ask: "What boxer, now active, has beaten three reigning world champions?" . . . Marshall, 172-pounder out of Cleveland, holds a decision over World Middleweight Champ Jake La Motta, and has knocked out Light-heavy Champ Freddie Mills and Heavyweight Champ Ezzard Charles . . . Yankee Pitcher Tommy Byrne and the Tigers have collaborated in setting two American League records for the 1949 season. Byrne fanned 12 Tigers for the greatest strikeout production in any game, and against the same club he walked 13 men to set a new peak for lack of control . . . the $1000 bonus Mickey Haefner collected from the Nats as a condition of reporting to the White Sox, was based on his ability to win 14 games for the Washington club . . . Alfred Gwynn Vanderbilt, miffed at the State of Maryland's refusal to let him abandon the Pimlico track and transfer its dates to Laurel, wants to pull out of Maryland racing and has put his controlling shares of Pimlico, Laurel and Timonium on the market . . . Vanderbilt was so burned he refused to attend the last Preakness, his favorite race. He has given first option on his holdings to Harry Parr, president of the Maryland Jockey Club, who is attempting to form a syndicate for the purchase.

THE RIFT BETWEEN top United States golf pros and Canadian open officials is widening since the latter withheld a $1500 payment to the PGA for failure to deliver name stars to the pre-tournament clinic . . . United States pros were outraged to start with, when Canadian customs officials charged them duty on extra golf balls and clubs they took across the border . . . Gus Lesnevich, a 2-to-1 underdog in his title fight with Ezzard Charles on August 10 in New York, likes his chances. "It's the first time I've never had to think about making weight for an important fight," says Lesnevich, who is building himself up to 180 pounds . . . Joe Engel has such complete control of the Chattanooga club that Ossie Bluege, the Nats' farm director, never visits Chattanooga on his travels and can manipulate no player deals involving that team . . . Glenn McCarthy, the fabulous Houston millionaire, is so indignant at the National Football League's refusal to play the All-America Conference champion for his pet charities, the report is he will sponsor an AAC franchise in Houston . . . Since he was traded to the Red Sox, Pitcher Walter Masterson has come up with the first sore arm of his career . . . aiming at the most convenient left field fence in the league, the Nats have hit no homers over Boston's left field wall this year.

THE MONTREAL GAZETTE pokes fun at another sector of the British Commonwealth with the story of Bobby Locke in London: "It seems Locke was visiting London and had been put up at an exclusive club. 'Isn't it a beautiful day?' Locke remarked to the only other occupant of the lounge, an elderly gaffer buried behind a copy of the London Times . . . whereat the old gentleman silently pressed the wall buzzer and when the attendant appeared on the scene, he waved his paper in the direction of Locke and said: 'This gentleman wishes to discuss the weather.'" . . . The Yankees have been using pinchrunners for Charley Keller, of late, indicating that Keller's comeback road is a slow one, inasmuch as he used to be the fastest of the Yankees, George Stirnweiss excepted . . . Ben Hogan is in Hollywood, discussing plans for a movie of his life. The most lingering effects of his automobile crash are felt in his legs, and he still walks with a light shuffle. He hasn't touched any club except his putter since his February accident . . . big league officials pooh-pooh the report that they have ordered cancellation of next year's radio and television contracts as a maneuver for removing the charge of interstate commerce against their game . . . They point out that some clubs have signed hold-over radio and video contracts that cannot easily be canceled.

The Red Sox understand perfectly why they are in third place, trailing the Yankees and Indians. In 24 games against those two clubs, they've won only six . . . Jack Dempsey is touring Canada in a search for a heavyweight contender . . . when Jackie Robinson was brought up to the majors, the chief question mark was his ability to hit major league pitching. He's answered that this season by outhitting Stan Musial by nearly 70 points and leading the league . . . And another strange turn of events is that Dom DiMaggio is outhitting Ted Williams with the Red Sox . . . Connie Mack's pitching, the best in the American League for the first 2½ months of the season, has collapsed . . . Joe Louis has enlisted Chick Harbert to help him with his golf game and now shoots in the mid-seventies. As when he was fighting, Louis is dead serious as a golfer and permits no by-play in his matches . . . Ball players who squawk at playing too many night games are being told by their club owners that night games pay their big salaries . . . The All-America Conference now permits its field goal kickers to use a 1-inch tee, if they like . . . And another new AAC rule prohibits the team on offense from advancing the ball when it recovers a wild snap-back from center.

Cards Take Lead in 14-1 Rout

Brooklyn Beaten 3d Time in Row

Brooklyn, July 24 (AP).—The St. Louis Cardinals took over first place in the National League from the Brooklyn Dodgers today and made no bones about it, trouncing the Dodgers, 14-1.

The victory was the Cards' third straight over the Dodgers in the four-game series that ends tomorrow and gave them a half-game lead. Stan Musial paced the 16-hit Card bombardment with a homer, triple, double and single.

Every Card collected at least one hit with the exception of Joe Garagiola and Tommy Glaviano and all but Chuck Diering, Marty Marion and Glaviano scored at least one run.

Red Schoendienst and Lou Klein singled in suggestion to start the ball game. Schoendienst scored the first run on a wild pitch. Musial then belted a tremendous triple to knock out Newcombe.

Enos Slaughter greeted Minner with a single and Ron Northey followed with a doube before Glen Nelson popped up for the first out.

Musial slapped a single during the Cards' six-run third inning flareup, belted his eighteenth homer in the fifth with the bases empty and completed his cycle with a double in the seventh. He walked in the ninth.

The Dodgers scored their lone run in the third inning. Pee Wee Reese and Billy Cox singled but Carl Furillo banged into a double-play with Reese moving to third. Jackie Robinson singled Reese across and then romped to third on a double by Gil Hodges. Luis Olmo ended the inning with a fly to Northey, deep in right field.

The victory was the Cards' ninth over the Dodgers in 14 meetings. The 14 runs matched the Cards' high for the season. They beat the Dodgers, 14-5, at Brooklyn on May 14.

Lefty Max Lanier has been selected to face the Dodgers for the Cards tomorrow with Ralph Branca his opponent. Lanier has lost twice without gaining a victory since rejoining the Cards last month.

The Cards return home after tomorrow's game for an 18-game stay. A Cardinal victory will enable the Red Birds to open their home stand with a 1½-game lead while a defeat will drop them back into second place, a half game back of the Brooks.

Guerra's Homer Completes A's Sweep Over White Sox

Chicago, July 24 (AP).—Mike Guerra hit a two-run homer off Chick Pieretti in the ninth inning to give Philadelphia a 6-4 second game decision over the White Sox today after the A's won the opener, 7-2, before 25,087 persons.

The twin triumph gave the A's the series, two games to one, for their fourth and fifth victories in the past 17 games.

Pieretti, coming to the rescue of starter Bill Wight, allowed one harmless hit in five innings before he ran into trouble in the Philadelphia ninth. Wally Moses opened with the 1999th hit of his career, a single to right, Pete Snder sacrificed, and Guerra followed with his third homer, a drive into the leftfield lower deck.

It was also Guerra's third hit of the game to pace the revived Athletics' 12-hit attack. Bobby Shantz, taking over for starter Dick Fowler at the start of the sixth, yielded only Bud Souchock's single in the final four innings.

The A's finished fast with two two-run spurts in the eighth and ninth innings to seal the opener for Joe Coleman although Charlie Harris worked the final three innings. The White Sox used three pitchers, including Mickey Haefner who made his Chicago debut in the Philadelphia ninth.

Four World Records Set In Bush River

By Happy Walker

Abingdon, Md., July 24.—Four world speed boat records were shattered here today as the Bush River Boat Club wound up its annual two-day regatta on the 2½-mile Bush River course.

As an overflow crowd of spectators lined every vantage point, Joe Van Blerck, Freeport, Long Island, familiar President's Cup regatta entry, put his seven litre Aljo over the electrically-timed mile course to set a world record of 92.303 miles per hour.

The Aljo is the well-known Gold Cup boat, So Long, formerly owned by Lou Fageol of Canton, Ohio. Van Blerck's honor was costly, for as he roared across the timer's line, underwater debris tore his forward hull apart. However, mechanics worked feverishly making temporary repairs on the crippled Aljo, permitting Van Blerck to go out in the final event of the day to win the Arundel Trophy.

Edgemere Pilot Sets Mark

Ed Thompson, Edgemere, Md., in his C Racing runabout, T. M. Special, bettered his last year's world record for a new mark of 60.403 miles per hour. Edison Hedges, Atlantic City attorney, holder of several top speed honors set a world record of 51.799 mph in his F Service Red Eagle Entry.

In the E Service Class, R. A. Dowdy, Grandy, N. C., gunned his Peggy over the mile course for a new high of 51.650 mph.

The course was approved for mile trials and Al Bauer, vice president, American Power Boat Association, was on hand to referee the assault on the world records, certified the marks immediately after the running, making the times official.

Washington's racing contingent, while not taking any top honors, were on hand at trophy presentation time to take a share of the plated ware. Aubrey Thacker and his brother, Joe, in Jezebel VII, took 600 points and second place in the D Service runabout class.

17-year-old Third

Seventeen-year-old John Wage, his recent Colonial Beach mishap just a memory, took third place with 450 points. In the B Service runabout event, Roy Bagley, driving Jack Terley's Stinky took second spot and 600 points, headed only by Howard Durm of Annapolis, Md., in his Cry Baby.

I ntypical fashion, Jerry Powell, Richmond, Va., current leading contender for the Gordon Munce Eastern high-point trophy, took both heats of the 135-cubic-inch hydro class for 800 points.

Clarence Collins, Norfolk, Va., took second place and 300 points. In the 91-cubic-inch hydros, Jack Van Deman, Philadelphia, was awarded top spot and 700 points on best elapsed time, beating our Wallace Roland of Baltimore.

Champions Also Score In Doubles

Capt. Robin Hippenstiel and Mrs. Magda Rurac annexed the Middle Atlantic men's and women's singles championships with final round, straight-set victories yesterday at Kenwood Country Club.

Mrs. Rurac, two-time National clay court titlist, won the ladies' crown from Washington's defending champion, Mrs. Ann Gray, 6—3, 6—3, and Hippenstiel whipped Air Force champion, Lieut. Charley Oliver, 6—4, 6—4, 6—1.

The Hippenstiel-Oliver match offered quite a contrast to their encounter two weeks ago in the finals of the Air Force tournament, when the lieutenant spanked the captain, 6—3, 6—0, 6—2.

Closely Waged Match

The first set of the men's division was the closest of the day. Although only three games were deuced and Oliver won the opener at love, Hippenstiel outscored his 10-year-younger opponent by a mere five points. For the entire contest the point scores were 95-69, Hippenstiel.

The match was between the two second-seeded players, Oliver among the visitors and Hippenstiel among the locals. Despite the straight set win it was perhaps the most evenly matched duel of the 127 in the tourney.

In the second set, like the first, there were only three service breaks, with Hippenstiel acquiring a 2-1 margin each time.

Both players hit with depth, but Oliver took advantage of the short ball and came to net more often. The bespectacled, 24-year-old lefthander had a hard time playing Hippenstiel's erratic backhand. Although the winner's ground strokes were nothing spectacular, his overhead was too much for Oliver.

Mrs. Rurac Outpoints Mrs. Gray

In the women's feature, Mrs. Rurac, the Rumanian champ, outpointed Mrs. Gray, 75—55. For the whole tournament, Mrs. Rurac lost only 14 out of 68 games and all of her victories were in straight sets.

The only perfect service ace in both finals contests was registered by the magnificent Magda. It occurred after two successive double faults and caught her opponent flatfooted.

After dropping the first set in the women's doubles finals Mrs. Rurac and Miss Frances Barry found the touch and downed Marion Ausness and Dorothy Estes, 3—6, 6—0, 6—0.

Robin Hippenstiel teamed up with his early afternoon victim and Leech Cup team mate, Lieutenant Oliver, in the men's doubles and downed the dark horse duet of Alphonso Smith and Davey Johnsen, 6—4, 6—1, 6—2.

Johnsen served two aces for the losers but Oliver shared the honor with a couple of his own. Oliver drew the loudest plaudits of the capacity crowd with a tricky drop shot which bounced and returned back to his side of the net.

Jack Martin's My Dream Wins Hampton Title at Cambridge

Cambridge, Md., July 24 (AP).—My Dream, sailed by Jack Martin, won top honors in the Hampton class today in the Cambridge Yacht Club's eleventh annual regatta on the Choptank River.

Martin, national Hampton champion, piloted the red-hulled boat to third place in today's race to win the series on the basis of total points. He brought My Dream home second and fifth in yesterday's two races.

Ahead of him in the final event were Rebel 2d and Corsair. Rebel 2d, sailed by Dinky Vail of the Norfolk Yacht and Country Club, won the heat and finished second in the over-all scoring principally on this basis.

Beau Joesting, Martin's clubmate, guided Corsair to second place in the finale.

The 21 Hamptons comprised the largest of the eight classes competing. A total of 60 boats were entered in the regatta—the largest in the club's history.

The Rev. Richard C. Hubbard of the host club, won the Governor Hicks trophy, presented to the winner in the Chesapeake log canoes class. The Rev. Mr. Hubbard defeated Duke Adams of the Solomons Island Yacht Club in two or three races over the weekend.

Adams steered his Oliver's Gift to victory in one race on a corrected time basis, but his opponent's Jay-Dee actually finished first in all three events.

Cubs Down Giants Twice

New York, July 24 (AP).—The cellar-shackled Chicago Cubs stunned the New York Giants today with a double setback, 5-3 and 6-1, to capture the series, three games to one.

Righthanders Bob Rush and Doyle Lade turned back the Giants with Dave Koslo and Larry Jansen absorbing the defeats.

The double vectory was a fitting climax to the celebration of "Frankie Firsch Day." The Cub manager and former Giant second baseman and coach was honored by Giant fans before the game and received an automobile and television set among other gifts.

By Harry De Mawby, Jr.

Junior horses and ponies of all sizes and description packed the Ray's Meadow horse show grounds yesterday at East-West Highway, Chevy Chase, Md., as Bruce Fales, jr., staged another successful Silver Spring Pony and Junior Show. Nine championships were decided and a total of 25 classes completed the day's outing.

L. Howard Fowler's Roulette, junior jumper champion, won every class in which he was entered to score highest for the day, a total of 17.

Reserve to Roulette was Nancy Carrigan's Irish, with 8 points. Hawkwood Ceil owned and ridden by John F. Freeman, jr., took the hunter championship with 9 points.

Reserve went to Peggy Skipper's Arbitrator with an 8-point score.

In the junior working hunter division Nancy Marsh's Short Circuit emerged the champion with 12 points. Reserve resulted in a tie between Hawkwood Ceil and Irvin Naylor's Ping Pong who scored 5 points each; on a coin toss the ribbon was awarded to Ping Pong.

The well-filled pony classes saw Baltimore area ponies take the majority of awards. Cynthia Graffam's Thane of Wales in the small pony division was hunter champion and reserve jumper champion.

Sir Sarazen Show Victor

Horse enthusiasts braved the sweltering heat yesterday to see Mrs. Gregory McIntosh's Sir Sarazen from Warrenton, Va., nose out Mrs. H. T. Holladay's Johnny P. for an impressive tri-color victory in the hunter division at yesterday's horse show sponsored by the Animal Welfare League of Arlington at the old Fairfax show grounds.

Sir Sarazen was ridden by Joan McIntosh to a blue in the open hunters, scored seconds in the ladies hunters and hunter hacks, third in the hunter event, and a fourth in the model for a total of 12½ points.

Johnny P., a newcomer to local show circles, had a brilliant round in the fast-approaching darkness, to win the ladies class and scored the place position in the open, green, and hunter hack events to take the reserve award with only ½ point off Sir Sarazen's tally.

W. C. Viar's veteran leaper, Altitude, racked up 10 points, by virtue of two consecutive wins in the touch-and-out and open jumpers, to garner the open jumping championship.

Duesseldorf, July 24 (AP).—Earl Cochell of San Francisco, winner of the 1949 Swiss international tennis championships, added a new victory to his list today.

He won the men's singles in the international tennis tournament at Duesseldorf by defeating Heraldo Weiss, from Argentina, 6—2, 6—2, 6—1.

Gottfried von Cramm, aging German tennis star from prewar times, and German Werner Deuthner won the men's doubles final by defeating the Argentine champion Weiss and German Fritz Kuhlmann, 6—3, 6—0.

Today's final ended postwar Germany's biggest international tennis tournament, with more than 200 entries from seven nations.

Gonzales Wins Pa. Title

Philadelphia, July 24 (U.P.).—Richard (Pancho) Gonzales, Los Angeles, had "everything" today as he won the Pennsylvania men's grass court singles championship with a 6—4, 6—1, 6—0 rout of Vic Seixas.

Gonzales, troubled only in the opening set by Seixas, the tournament champion in 1946 and 1947, got stronger as the match rolled along and was in full charge in the final phases.

The national singles champion was a far different player than he was in the semifinals when he almost bowed to Herbie Flam in a five-set match which Flam was within one point of winning.

Gonzales, who won the national clay court championship last weekend, was playing with the knowledge that his Davis Cup team status rested on his showing in this and in immediate future tournaments.

Seixas, from the Philadelphia suburbs, advanced to the finals by defeating defending champion Sam Match, San Francisco, yesterday.

Court Ruling Could Enhance Preference Rights of Veterans

A decision by a Federal judge in San Francisco could compel the Government to revise its layoff rule to give even greater preference to veterans.

Federal Judge Herbert W. Erskine ruled that the regional office of the Veterans Administration in that city cannot fire four veterans with permanent status. He issued a preliminary injunction which forbids VA from discharging them in a general reduction of force which VA says was being made in the interests of economy.

The decision was a rare court action. The Government will appeal. Similar cases have been taken to court, but they have been thrown out when the judges ruled they lacked jurisdiction to hear them. In this case the U. S. district attorney also argued that the court lacked jurisdiction.

Judge Erskine conceded the argument, in part. He added, however, that VA had not adhered strictly to the Veterans Preference Act of 1944, and "that the jurisdiction of this court extends to the protection of those rights which the Congress intended to extend to war veterans by the provisions of the aforementioned act, and that a form of injunction relief should be granted."

The case was brought by Jerome Farrell and three other veterans. It will be watched with keen interest by veterans and nonveterans alike. If it's upheld, veterans would have a right to appeal their layoffs to the Federal courts, as well as the Civil Service Commission.

Pauline Finster is the first Budget Bureau employe to be given a cash award for an economy suggestion . . . Ford W. Luikart is leaving this week to help the Greek government reorganize its Civil Service system. He'll leave a big gap at our own Civil Service Commission . . . War service and temporary information specialists in CAF-13, 14, and 15 whose appointments aren't converted to probational by September 20 must be fired. The order applies to such employes in State's New York or Office of International Information as well as those here in all-status jobs.

Story: A baseball umpire applied for Civil Service's recent test for personnel officer. He based his application on the following statement:

"As an umpire, I am in complete charge of the game and all participating personnel. I must be able to formulate instantaneous decisions regarding various plays as to whether the players are 'out' or 'safe.'

I must be thoroughly familiar with all rules of the game and be able to apply them at the proper time and to the proper play.

"I must be able to handle people, inasmuch as arguments sometimes arise regarding my decision on a play, and I must be able to restore order and quiet the group so play can resume. I must be able to control crowds of spectators, keep them from interfering with the game or players. The players are entirely dependent upon me for the proper direction of the game from start to the finish.

JOB NEWS: Civil Service has added 500 names to its eligible registers for P-1 through P-5 engineer jobs . . . July 27 is the last day applications will be accepted for 15 different types of cook and kitchen jobs by the Military District of Washington. Get full details in Room 2E-1030 of the Pentagon . . . Federal employment in the executive agencies here jumped 1200 in June to a total of 217,000. The big increases were in VA and Commerce. Nation-wide, there was a decrease of 4400 employes during the month. VA, Treasury, War Assets and Navy made the big layoffs.

DECISION: The Court of Claims here has ruled that Albert E. Kane, a State Department attorney, is entitled to collect his salary for the period he was illegally fired. A veteran, Kane appealed his layoff to Civil Service, where he gained a favorable decision, and was promptly reinstated.

Kane then sued to collect his salary for the five months it took to get reinstated. His suit was settled without trial when the court adopted the stipulations in his favor drawn by his attorney, Philip P. Marenberg.

Property Tax Boost To Raise D. C. Rents

Administrator Says Increases Will Be Less Than 1 Pct. Of Annual Figure

Rents on Washington residences will move up a little next month as a result of the boost in the District property tax, which became effective July 1.

The tax was raised from $2 per $100 valuation to $2.15 to provide additional revenue for the city.

Rent Control Administrator Robert F. Cogswell estimated the increases probably will be less than 1 per cent of annual rent. His office is preparing a form similar to that used in 1947, when the tax rate also was boosted, to make the increases effective.

Forms Can Be Seen

To obtain the rent increase, landlords will have to execute the forms, which require sworn statements on the amount of tax increase. Tenants can see copies of the completed form at the landlord's office or at the building itself.

Cogswell said the additional tax will be apportioned equally among the number of units operated and then computed on a monthly rate for each apartment. Thus, if the tax boost is $120 on a structure with 12 units, the additional rent would be $10 on each or 83 cents a month.

Tenants who question the figures submitted may file a letter with the rent administrator, and the figures will be checked at the assessor's office. The increase will be effective as of the date of filing the form and if the submitted figures are found faulty adjustments will be ordered.

Forms Ready Soon

Tenants have gained at least a month at present rentals because the new tax bills have not been mailed out yet. Plans now call for mailing about the middle of the month. The adjustment forms will be ready in about a week, Cogswell said.

Although commercial rents are not controlled, some raises are expected because of the tax boost.

Thieves Loot Cars of 5 Pool Swimmers

While they sought to escape the heat in the East Potomac Park swimming pool Saturday evening, five persons were victimized by auto looters, park police reported yesterday.

The thieves broke into five cars parked on a lot near the swimming pool sometime between 5 and 10 p.m., police said, and stole $133 in cash and a number of valuable articles.

In each case, the cars were entered by breaking in a ventilator window.

Miss Gayla Mooman, of 9 Herbert st., Alexandria, Va., lost a pocketbook containing $7, a billfold containing $10, a wrist watch and a blanket.

Miss Geneva Montgomery, of 1924 Rhodes st., Arlington, Va., reported the loss of a pocketbook containing valuables but no cash.

Miss Elsie K. Meyer, of 4403 3rd st. se., was robbed of purse and a wallet containing $6.

The loss of $70, a man's coat and a thermos bottle was reported by Miss Rose Oatwood, of 5307 3rd st. nw.

And the car looters made off with $40 and a gold compact from the car of Miss Lillian Carleton, of 9309 Sudbury rd., Silver Spring, Md.

3 Residents Run Afoul of Night Thugs

Three Washington residents found traveling at night an expensive proposition over the weekend.

Eldridge Tillman of 1414 V st. nw., told police he was wending his way homeward early Sunday morning when he stopped for a short nap in the doorway of 2000 Portner pl. nw. While he was snoozing, he said some crook had the effrontery to "relieve" him of his watch, $130 in cash and his pearl gray felt hat. What's more, he was wearing the hat at the time, he complained.

At about midnnight, Robert Wilburne, 55, of 635 H st. sw., was entering his home, he said, when a shadowy figure stepped out of the hallway and took his wallet containing $20 at the point of a knife. The figure was that of a youth, Wilburne told police, who then fled.

And just to prove that the night's misfortunes had no respect for sex or age, Mrs. Emily W. Garrison, 78, of 211 Delaware ave. sw., lost $4 to a purse snatcher a block from her home. She told police the purse snatcher, a youth, fled in the Capital grounds.

Eddie Dowling Hits Theater Lack Here, Suggests U. S. Aid

Calling Washington's lack of a legitimate theater "a sad thing," Eddie Dowling, producer, director and actor, yesterday said the Government should remedy the situation.

The all-round-man-of-the-theater is here for a revival of his production of William Saroyan's "Time of Your Life," opening a seven-day run at Meridian Hill Park at 8:50 p. m. today.

Describing Washington as "a wonderful audience—the best week's stand in the country," Dowling said the lack of a theater "is a surprising situation."

Raps Congress

In an expansive mood, he impartially asked why the President and the District Commissioners don't "do something," and suggested that Congress was ignorant of the arts.

"They come here from the backwoods, these Senators and Congressmen, and what do they know about the arts?" he asked.

"Our leaders in Congress have done less than the leaders in any other country to further the arts. And yet the Russians we are picking on all the time have the best ballet in the world.

"They talk about furthering democracy," he said, alluding to the fact that the city's last legitimate theater closed because of the segregation issue, "there is no better way than the arts. You hear Marian Anderson sing and by the time you hear the sixth or seventh note you forget all about color."

"This is one of those things which if the commercial interests can't take care of, the Government should."

Let Business Run It

Dowling said, however, he did not think "it should be a national theater"; he did not think "it should be ANTA" (American National Theater and Academy). "Let commercial people run it," he said.

Dowling, 54, is making his first Washington appearance since a one-night presentation of Tennessee Williams' "Glass Menagerie" in 1944. His production of it won both the Drama Critic's Circle and Pulitzer awards, as had his production of "The Time of Your Life," which was the first play in stage history to win both awards.

Dowling, who evolved from a vaudeville song and dance man to "serious" theater, is making his first appearance tonight in summer theater.

"I didn't think summer theater wanted serious plays," he said yesterday, "but I found out I was wrong.

"Another thing, I've always been a stickler for perfection, and I didn't think you could get it in the summer theater, but I found out I was wrong about that, too."

Kenworthy To Retire as C. and P. Aide

After nearly 48 years of service with the Bell Telephone system, Frahklin H. Kenworthy will retire July 31 as vice president and comptroller of the four Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone companies in Washington, Maryland, Virginia and West Virginia.

Kenworthy

Kenworthy, who lives in Purcellville, Va., began his telephone career in 1901 as a bookkeeper with the New York Telephone Co., and in 1912 transferred to the Chesapeake and Potomac Co. of Baltimore as a division auditor of receipts.

From 1913 to 1929 he was auditor of receipts for the C. and P. group of companies, and returned to the Maryland company as general auditor in 1929.

In 1930 Kenworthy was appointed assistant general auditor of the C. and P. group of companies, and in 1935 he became general auditor. He was elected vice president and general auditor for the four companies in 1943, and in 1944 he became vice president and comptroller.

Kenworthy is a member of the Washington Board of Trade, the board of trustees of the United Community Service, the board of directors of the District Social Hygiene Society and many other professional and civic organizations.

Naval Air Reserves To Receive Training On the Roosevelt

A hundred Washington area high school seniors and recent graduates yesterday climbed aboard a magic carpet provided by the Naval Air Reserve recruiting service.

Taking off for Norfolk in several flights from the Naval Air Station in Anacostia, they headed for a full week's cruise on the U. S. S. Franklin D. Roosevelt, the Navy's largest carrier.

The boys, mostly 17- and 18-year-olds, are getting the vacation cruise with pay, uniforms and equipment thrown in—as part of an eight-week indoctrination course with the Naval Air Reserve Training Unit.

At least one of the youths about to be treated to the seagoing adventure indicated the easy-to-take recruiting tactics might bear fruit.

"This is the greatest thing that could happen to a guy!" said Joseph Startari, 17, a June graduate of Central High School, who lives at 3314 Buchanan st., Mt. Rainier, Md.

His excitement over the deal was echoed by many other trainees, who for the past five weeks have been receiving a form of "boot" training.

Most of the trainees have never been aboard a carrier, and many had not flown before. A few, like Peter M. Wells, 18, of 1604 Crestwood dr., Alexandria, Va., have been aboard carriers as visitors. Peter, the son of Comdr. Peter K. Wells, now stationed at the Navy Department, is heading for Annapolis and is attending Bullis School in Silver Spring, Md.

When the boys return from the cruise and complete their training in August, most are expected to remain in the Active Reserve. With only a few days' service a month required, the seamen recruits may strike for petty officer ratings in radio, ordnance, aircraft mechanics or other aviation jobs in Anacostia squadrons.

Those who want to drop out of the active Reserve may remain in the inactive Reserve, or if they prefer may resign entirely and sever their connections with the Navy.

A similar program was offered last summer at the Los Alamitos (Calif.) Naval Air Station. Its success caused the Naval Air Reserve to offer the training this year at 20 Naval Air stations throughout the country.

The youths in the Anacostia training course, however, are the only group scheduled to receive the week's ship cruise.

This morning, 150 pilots and ground personnel of Naval Reserve Air Group 65, based at Anacostia, will take off for Oceana, Va., for operational training flights to the Franklin D. Roosevelt. They will use the Navy's auxiliary air station at Oceana as an advanced base and fly to the carrier in two squadrons as she cruises off the coast.

950 D. C. Guardsmen Return From Camp

Some 950 District National Guard officers and men returned last night from what their group commander described as a "very successful" 15-day encampment at Camp Pendleton, Va.

It was the annual field training period of the Guard's 260th Antiaircraft Artillery group, commanded by Col. Leroy S. Mann, who was also camp commander.

Participating units included three battalions, an ordnance company, a band and Signal Corps radar maintenance unit.

Another feature of the encampment included a visit by the new District Guard commander, Brig. Gen. William Abendroth.

Contractors Meet Rodmen's Demand, Walkout Is Averted

3 Other Disputes On Wages Plague Building Industry In Washington Area

A strike of AFL rodmen scheduled for today against most Washington area builders was averted yesterday afternoon when the contractors agreed to the workers' wage demands.

The rodmen—217 members of the Reinforced Steel Workers' Local 201—will receive an increase of 10 cents an hour now and an additional raise of 5 cents January 1. The new contract will run until June 30, 1950.

Three other wage disputes—including a scheduled strike Wednesday by dump truck drivers—now stand between the construction industry and assurance of uninterrupted work the rest of the season.

Disputes with half a dozen other building trades, notably the AFL carpenters and laborers whose 6½-week strike ended two weeks ago, have been settled by the Master Builders Association since June 1.

The Reinforced Steel Workers had signed up 11 contractors and subcontractors at the higher wages before yesterday's last-minute agreement, according to Leslie L. Myers, international representative of the union.

The rodmen would have struck all construction projects in the area where they are employed except for those operated by the 11 builders who had agreed to the new terms. The rodmen's job of setting steel rods for reinforcing concrete is regarded as a key item in construction.

The rodmen have been receiving $2.35 an hour under their old contract, which expired April 30.

The new agreement was reached at a meeting in Myers' room at the Hotel Hamilton. Francis J. Kelly, attorney for the Master Builders Association of 44 general contractors, was the principal on the employers' side.

Originally, the union asked for a 25-cent raise to $2.60 an hour, but scaled down its demands to 10 cents now and 5 cents later. The builders had offered the 10 cents, but until yesterday resisted the January 1 boost.

The dump truck drivers, represented by Local 639 of the AFL Teamsters, have notified the Dump Truck Operators Association they will strike at 7 a. m. Wednesday unless wage demands are met.

Originally asking for 32 cents an hour more, they have been offered 10 cents by the operators. Union negotiators later offered to recommend a 22-cent raise if employers would agree to that amount, but the deadlock still exists. The scale now is $1.18 to $1.43 an hour, under a contract which expired March 31.

Another building trades union, the AFL ready-mix concrete truck drivers, who are demanding a 15-cent-an-hour raise, will meet Tuesday night to consider an offer from contractors expected to be made today or Tuesday.

The third dispute involves structural ironworkers, who originally demanded a raise of 25 cents an hour over the present $2.75 scale. No negotiations have been held for the past two weeks, but a settlement may be reached this week, union officials indicated.

Hawk Killed In Attack at Bolling Base

A 20-pound fantail hawk attacked Bolling Air Force Base yesterday but was destroyed before it accomplished any damage.

The hawk, which measured about 5 feet from wing tip to wing tip, fluttered down to the north end runway at Bolling at 2 p. m.

Tech. Sergt. Harrison G. Hawthorne, 27, of Leesburg, Va., an aerial engineer at Bolling, witnessed the landing. It appeared to him that the hawk's right wing tip was injured, perhaps from colliding with an aircraft aloft.

Like most Virginia boys, Hawthorne knows hawks and knows they are dangerous and will attack a man when injured. Before Hawthorne went out to where the hawk rested, he armed himself with a 5-foot shovel.

It was a wise precaution. When the airman was about 20 feet from the hawk, it spread its wings, eyed him evilly and prepared to attack.

The large bird had just started to rise when Hawthorne reached it and clubbed it with the shovel.

There was some speculation at Bolling that the bird was an eagle but Hawthorne declared it was a sure enough hawk.

Hawthorne was in the Navy during World War II as crew chief of a PBY.

Producers Set To Study Hike In Milk Price

Local milk producers will meet sometime this week to discuss a proposed increase of 50 cents a 100 pounds in the price of milk to distributors, Bruce B. Derrick, secretary of the Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers Association, announced yesterday.

The increase, Derrick said, would restore milk prices to those in effect last April before producers voluntarily cut prices 50 cents because of prime pastures and ideal growing conditions.

Should producers agree on the increase, it will be up to local dairies to decide whether to hold prices at the present level or pass the cost on to consumers, he added.

[When the Maryland and Virgini a producers lowered milk prices 50 cents a hundredweight in April, there was a general reduction of 1 cent a quart in the price of milk sold by local distributors.]

The producers, representing 1550 herdsmen, said it was becoming "economically impossible" to adhere to the current prices. They listed increased cost of feeds, higher wages for farm hands and increased fixed costs, such as taxes and insurance, as factors tending to drive milk prices upward.

Rep. Keating Says Politics Delaying Ex-GIs' Refunds

Representative Keating (R., N. Y.) yesterday said veterans will be getting their $2,800,000,000 insurance refunds "around election day in 1950 just as the Truman Administration planned."

The Veterans Administration, he said, has not yet obtained the floor space it needs to handle the job.

Keating spoke out in a statement on the heels of an announcement of the veterans agency that application blanks will be ready August 29 and that the checks will start moving out in January. President Truman has ordered the job finished before June 30, 1950.

Keating said "Republican members of the House Veterans Committee, nearly two years ago, urged the Veterans Administration to begin refunding" the money.

The Supreme Court, he said, ruled favorably in June, 1948, on making the refund. He quoted the Administration as saying the payments could be made six months after the court acted.

Keating said the War Assets Administration holds floor space requested by the veterans agancy, but that the White House had power to make it or other space available.

Bus Driver Konked By Passenger; But No Money Taken

Several bus passengers escaped injury early yesterday when an impatient commuter, with an apparent yen to get off between bus stops, knocked the bus driver into unconsciousness, opened the doors and fled.

Benjamin R. Fitzpatrick, 21, of 2352 Green st. se., a Capital Transit Co. driver, told police he was driving along Pennsylvania ave. near 7th st. se. at about 3 a. m. when a passenger suddenly stunned him with a blow to the head. The bus jerked to a stop and the man got off. Other passengers said the assailant made no effort to get the driver's money.

Fitzpatrick was treated at Providence Hospital and released.

Suddenly, and for no apparent reason, police said, she opened the door and jumped from the car in the 400 block of M st. se. She is in Casualty Hospital with head injuries. Her condition is not serious.

This happened at about 10:15 p. m. About an hour later, Mrs. Alfrida Johnson, 21, of 515 46th st. se., duplicated the performance at 12th st. and Potomac ave. se. Police said she had been arguing with her husband, Melvon, 28, who was driving the car.

Mrs. Johnson was treated at Gallinger Hospital for possible head injuries and released yesterday morning.

Miss Earhart Died in Japan, Mother Says

Los Angeles, July 24 (U.P.).—The mother of world-famous aviatrix Amelia Earhart, missing since a round-the-world flight in 1937, said tonight her daughter "died in Japan" on a U. S. Government mission, and not in the Pacific Ocean.

"Amelia told me many things," Mrs. Amy Otis Earhart said. "But there were some things she could not tell me. I am convinced she was on some sort of a Government mission, probably on verbal orders."

The woman flier has been missing since July 3, 1937, en route from Lae, New Guinea, to Howland Island.

Mrs. Earhart said she had "kept quiet" about her theory, but thought it "could hurt no one now."

"I am sure there was a Government mission involved in the flight because Amelia explained there were some things she could not tell me," Mrs. Earhart said. "I am equally sure she did not make a forced landing in the sea.

"She landed on a tiny atoll—one of many in that general area of the Pacific—and was picked up by a Japanese fishing boat that took her to the Marshall Islands, then under Japanese control."

Postlude

Mitchell Brilliant at Watergate

By Paul Hume

Howard Mitchell's conducting of last night's Watergate concert surpassed even his fine work of the previous Friday.

Opening the final Sunday concert of the summer with Mozart's G Minor symphony, Mitchell presented a polished, mid-winter version of the masterpiece. He has a great gift for directing the more moderate movements of these classical scores so that they glisten with life. The outer portions of the work went with equal brilliance and the finale had real dash.

Hazel Arth was the first of two soloists in the program. With the assistance of a men's chorus, she sang the Alto Rhapsody of Brahms. In her three performances of this work during the past year, she never sang better than last night. Her voice was warm throughout, and she found a compelling note in the earlier pages that had eluded her before.

Chorus' Chores Small

The chorus, alas, had little to do. Their singing was so secure and balanced that we could only wish a more important role had been assigned them. They should be brought back next year in something exploiting them more fully.

The Strauss version of Don Juan is a favorite of mine. Few conductors so satisfy the requirements of the work as does Mitchell. Not only is it full of pitfalls technically, but it must be kept moving through a variety of moods. It had its full measure of excitement and tonal beauty last night.

Lee Fairfax, baritone, brought two songs of Strauss, and one of Schubert to the large audience. His voice deserves so much more sensitive handling than he ever gives it that we fear for its future. To break on a high note in "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life," sung for an encore, is not the sign of a great future.

Not Important Thing

Yet the broken note was not the important thing. Fairfax has been blessed with a great voice. He owes himself and his public the best he can give—not mediocrity. Let him examine the scores of the songs he sang last night for further details. Nuance, nuance, nuance—every phrase called for it, but in vain.

Mitchell rounded off the Viennese part of the evening with Strauss waltzes and the Perpetual Motion. This year's orchestrations of the waltzes are certainly an improvement over past arrangements. The difference shows up wonderfully in the playing and sound of the orchestra.

This seems the proper place for a word of appreciation of this summer's orchestra. The woodwinds and brass are superb. The strings have a glow and cohesive tone that is a joy to the ear. The soloists throughout the orchestra are the finest in Watergate history, with John Martin's fine cello playing doing expert duty in place of the great former cellist, who is now the conductor of the National Symphony.

Wednesday: All Gershwin evening with Jane Pickens and Abba Bogin.

Lucketts, Va., July 24 (Spl.).—Harvey A. Trittipoe, 81, churchman and retired farmer, died unexpectedly Saturday evening at his home here following a heart attack.

Mr. Trittipoe, a native of Loudoun County, had spent his entire life in this community. For more than 40 years, he had been an elder in Faith Chapel Presbyterian Church, and was a former superintendent of the Sunday school, serving in that post for more than 25 years. His wife died 12 years ago.

He is survived by two sons, William H. of Lucketts, and Howard R. of Washington; two daughters, Mrs. J. Sterling Adams and Mrs. William Hawkins, both of Bethesda, Md., and a brother, William Trittipoe of Frederick, Md.

Funeral services will be held Tuesday at 11 a. m. at his late residence and will be conducted by his pastor, the Rev. Henry L. Willis. Burial will be in the Leesburg Union Cemetery.

If You Have Time to Spare And Want to Do a Turn, The Red Cross Needs You

HAVE YOU been just joggin' along this lazy summer weather, gnawed occasionally by the feeling that you weren't doing anything really constructive?

This week the Red Cross is offering you a chance to do your neighbors a good turn without putting forth a colossal amount of effort. In fact, it's practically pleading with you to come on down and help out as a receptionist at the Blood Donor Center.

If you volunteer, you'll be a staff aide, serve as hostess and take the names of donors at the center or go on bloodmobile trips to outlying communities. They need at least 25 more daytime workers than they have now and will be grateful if you can give only a few hours a week. If yours is a cheerful manner and a pleasant personality, you're just the girl they're looking for to help out the overworked staff.

Call Volunteer Services, Republic 8300, Extension 2177, for an interview appointment if you can do it. A one-day training course to orient you will be given next Friday.

Design Contest Winner Today

TODAY'S THE day when a lucky young miss (between the ages of 17 and 24) will be chosen to represent this area in the national finals of the Harper's Bazaar-Jacques Heim 1949 original design contest. Her reward—if she wins out over 11 other contestants in the final judging which takes place shortly in New York—will be a trip to Paris!

More than 100 aspiring young designers from the District, Virginia, West Virginia and Maryland, have submitted the required number of color sketches, and judging will take place at 3 p. m. at Julius Garfinckel & Co., the local sponsor of the contest.

In France a similar contest is in progress, the winner to be given a trip to this country. Mlle. Daniele Clement of Paris, who captured last year's first prize, visited Washington in the spring, rounding out an extended tour of our fashion centers.

This is the second year for the original design contest, which aims at an exchange of ideas on fashion design between young women of France and America. Last year the finalist from this area did not quite make the grade. So let's keep our fingers crossed for her this year. We'd like to see a "Miss Washington Design" get a trip to Paris.

Benefit Picnic Will be Nostalgic

IF IT'S been years—or even just months—since you ate a real old-fashioned country supper, you'll be interested in the benefit picnic this Tuesday for Montgomery County Hospital.

Hickory-smoked ham, crisp fried chicken, homemade cakes, pies, and lemonade will be served beneath the shade trees on Sherwood High lawn at Sandy Spring, Md. To get there from Washington, drive out Georgia ave., through Silver Spring to Georgia ave. pike. Bear right at Olney (some 20 miles out) and go about another mile to Sandy Spring and the high school. Festivities start at 3 p. m., last through the evening.

Complement to Outdoor Meals

SERVING AN outdoor meal yourself this week? Then maybe you'd like to make some good, tart New York coleslaw to eat along with your fried chicken or barbecue or hamburgers.

Shred up a cabbage (about a 2-pounder), grate 2 carrots and a small onion and mince up 2 stalks of celery. Make a dressing by mixing 2 tablespoons flour, ¼ teaspoon dry mustard. Stir to a smooth paste with 2/3 cup water and 1/3 cup vinegar. Add 1 egg, slightly beaten, and stir over low heat until mixture thickens. Remove from heat and add 2 tablespoons sour cream. Chill and serve over the slaw. This recipe will make six portions.

Air Shows Are Cool and Free

IF YOU haven't been to a radio or television show ever—or even lately—put one down on your calendar for this week. Most of them are in air-conditioned studios, too.

Washington can't offer Milton Berle's show, to be sure, but it has a number of entertaining radio and television shows to choose from and the tickets aren't hard to get.

WTOP's "You're the Top" quiz show, aired for 15 minutes every morning and 15 minutes every afternoon, is actually recorded in one session every day at 1:30 p. m. at the studios in the Warner Building at 13th and E sts. nw. Requests for tickets must be in writing (address "You're the Top," WTOP, Warner Building) but it's worth the effort because there are prizes involved.

At WWDC there's a daily "Luncheon at 1450" program for which you can just drop in. It starts at 12:15 p. m., but as is the case with all radio and television shows, you must be on hand at least 15 minutes in advance. (The studio is located at Connecticut ave. and K st. nw.) In addition to prizes for everybody—"we have so many prizes we don't know what to do with them," says the emcee—a luncheon of sandwiches, dessert and beverage is served. It's a quiz style show of a mad and frenzied nature.

Two of the most intellectually rewarding of the radio shows are broadcast over WOL. "Meet the Press" is aired Friday nights at 10 from the WOL studios at 1627 K st. nw. No tickets are required but the facilities are limited. "The American Forum of the Air," which is broadcast Mondays at 10 p. m., originates from the Shoreham Hotel. No tickets required there, either, and the auditorium is large.

The television version of this forum, "American Television Forum" which is telecast over WNBW at 4:30 p. m. Sundays, originates in the Metronome Room of the Wardman Park Hotel. Just wander in, before air time. (You may be seen by home TV viewers since the audience gets in camera range.)

WTTG has variety shows to which visitors are welcome if they ask in advance. Phone the station (Sterling 5300) for permission to visit WTTG video shows for audience attendance.

Give the station 24 hours on these and on the very popular nightly "Moppet Shop" which goes on at 6 p. m. Children may come alone, or with parents. But the parents have to watch the show on a set in the lobby; only the youngsters can go inside to meet Hoppity Skippity and Gordon face to face.

WTTG, at 12th and E sts. nw., also opens its "Game Room" to visitors every night at 7:15 p. m. (except for Mondays when it's 7:30) with tickets not required. That's the Les Sand show on which nothing is for certain except that it won't be a routine show.

WRC at 14th and New York ave. permits visitors to watch Gene Archer's daily disk show at 12:30 p. m., and Morgan Beatty's newscasts at 7:15 and 11:15 nightly. No tickets required.

For people who like to sing, WOL's "Saturday Night Camp Meeting," a nonsectarian inspirational show which originates from the Capital Memorial Church at 5th and F sts. nw., Saturday nights at 9:30, is a possibility. No tickets required there, either.

MRS. RICHARD G. KIMBELL, JR., who was married July 2 in the Lakewood Presbyterian Church, Lakewood, Ohio. She is the former Miss Marjory Ann Reed, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Reed of Lakewood. WHEN I WAS . . .
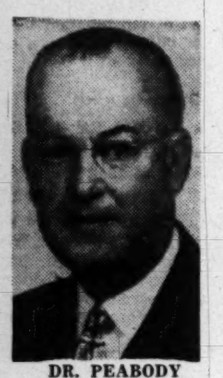
Father of the Bride

For the wedding of his daughter, Naomi, Dr. J. Winthrop Peabody was on hand in an uncomfortable wing collar, frock coat and spats. But when his second daughter, Sara Ann, was married June 21, he was sitting comfortably at home in a business suit—because the wedding was 7000 miles away.

DR. J. WINTHROP PEABODY didn't escort his daughter, Sara Ann, to the altar. He escorted her instead to the airport, where she said a brisk "See you in two years," and hopped aboard the plane before anybody could burst into tears.



DR. PEABODY

The plane sped her to San Francisco. From there she went by Army transport to Yokosuka, Japan, to become the bride of Marine Lieut. William F. Wagner.

It wasn't just exactly what Dr. Peabody had planned. When Lieutenant Wagner had asked permission to become engaged to 19-year-old Sally last fall, before he left for an expected assignment in war-torn China, Dr. Peabody figured it'd be a couple of years before he'd be home, and meanwhile Sally could continue her studies at Rosemont College.

Lieutenant Wagner wrote that he was stationed in a model Japanese city and the officers' wives wrote to Sally to say that Japan was a wonderful place to start married life. The Peabodys gave in.

"We felt she'd be marrying a boy with whom she was greatly in love, and he was in the service of his country. We couldn't say no," Dr. Peabody says.

"AFTER that, I went through as much or more than the average father of the bride, and never did get to see the wedding," he complains.

When it seemed Bill would get home, plans were set in motion for a big wedding here. Then it became clear Sally would have to go to Japan for the ceremony.

After many months' battle with red tape, in which Sally distinguished herself for bravery and efficiency, and gave her father confidence in her ability to handle any crisis, it began to look as if she might get there.

Dr. Peabody retired behind his newspaper, but it didn't shelter him from the household buzzing.

"When will the travel orders come? Do you suppose the store put my veil in with the dress when they shipped it to Japan? Is it really true that you have to store clothes in metal closets with lighted bulbs to prevent mildew in Japan? WHEN will the travel orders come? Did the men crate the little washing machine yet? Should I take my fur coat? When WILL those travel orders get here?"

THE orders finally came, and Sally and Bill were married in Yokosuka, June 21. The bride's parents, after a confused study of the time differences between Yokosuka and Washington (with due allowance for the international date line and daylight-saving time), drank a champagne toast to the bride and bridegroom 7700 miles away.

Dr. Peabody "saw" his daughter Sally's wedding to Lieut. William Wagner when pictures arrived several days ago from Yokosuka, Japan

News dribbled in. A cablegram from Sally and Bill, a phone call from a woman whose daughter had been at the wedding and the big reception given for the newlyweds by Col. and Mrs. A. Bryan Lasswell and Bill's fellow officers.

The letters from the bride. The wedding was lovely. . . . There was an honor guard of Marines. . . . The scenery at Hakone was lovely. . . . the new apartment was so small "the icebox is in the dining room, and you have to practically stand in the dining room to cook because the kitchen is so small." . . . the maid, Babysan, was fine . . . the apartment was such fun to fix up. . . . everybody was being wonderful to Sally.

So Dr. Peabody knows he didn't make a mistake. But as a man who knows both sides of the story, he says that walking down the aisle in cutaway and stiff collar has it all over visualizing a wedding 7000 miles away.—SONIA STEIN.

Father of the Bride

This is the ninth of 14 installments of that popular saga of the forgotten man, "Father of the Bride." This condensed version of Edward Streeter's novel chronicles the story of Mr. Stanley Banks as he watches the rise of the greatest show on earth (his daughter's wedding) and the fall of his bank account.

By Edward Streeter

"WE MUST do something about the caterer," said Mrs. Banks.

"The only thing to do is to have one come out from town. Sally Harrison had one for little Sally's wedding. She was crazy about him. His men were efficient and courteous and he's done a lot of weddings for people we know so he understands the sort of thing we want and she said he was very reasonable."

On the following Saturday morning Mr. and Mrs. Banks drove to town and visited the offices of Buckingham Caterers. Mr. Massoula, who appeared to be in charge, was obviously a young man who knew his way about. He had a long upper lip decorated on its lower edge with a tiny mustache, reminiscent of a fringe on a lamp shade. His doublebreasted, blue suit was sharply creased and his thin, black hair was plastered down so tightly that it might have been painted on his skull.

Wedding reception? Yes indeed. Buckingham Caterers were fully equipped to take the whole affair over. Mr. and Mrs. Banks didn't need to give the matter another thought. Just specify the date and they could romp off to the Arizona Biltmore or Palm Beach or Palm Springs or wherever it was that people like Mr. and Mrs. Banks spent their time. The point was they did not need to worry.

Buckingham Caterers had handled some of the biggest and most expensive wedings in the country. Mr. Massoula let it be understood clearly that they were not in the habit of putting their shoulder to weddings which were not in the upper brackets of the social scale

"But first," said Mr. Massoula, reaching under the table and producing several large photograph albums, "I'd like to have you look at a few shots of some of our receptions."

As he looked Mr. Banks' dismay turned to panic. Buckingham Caterers not only dealt exclusively with the uncrowned heads of American Industrial Aristocracy, but apparently they catered only on huge estates and in palaces. He wondered how he could get out of the whole thing gracefully. Maple Drive had suddenly become a kind of suburban back alley.

BUT IT was too late. Mr. Massoula had pulled out a pad of forms. "Now we should get some idea of what you would like to serve. We will supply the champagne of course."

Much to his chagrin Mr. Banks turned slightly red.

"I'm sorry. What I mean is I didn't know. That is to say I've bought the champagne already."

Mr. Massoula's face clouded with politely restrained annoyance. "Then we will have to charge corkage, of course."

"Corkage?"

"A dollar a bottle for drawing and pouring."

"By the way," said Mr. Massoula, "are you serving French champagne?" Had he said, "You are serving French champagne, of course?" the meaning would have been the same.

"As a matter of fact I'm not," said Mr. Banks in a tone that acknowledged the eccentricity of his decision. "I just think it's a shame to waste good vintage champagne on these kids. So I'm giving them American," he finished lamely.

Mr. Massoula nodded understandingly. "That will be all right with us," he said graciously. "Now, about the food. How about a large cold salmon at either end of the table with the various salads in great bowls in the center?"

"But," interrupted Mrs. Banks timidly, "we hadn't intended to have that kind of a reception. We thought that maybe some small assorted sandwiches—different kinds, you know—and ice cream and little cakes—"

"Of course you can have what you wish, madam, but that is usually what we serve at children's parties."

Now where will the reception take place?"

"Twenty-four Maple Drive, Fairview Manor," said Mr. Banks belligerently

"Is it a large house?"

"No," said Mr. Banks defiantly. "It's a small house."

"Then of course you are planning for a marquee on the terrace.'

"I have no terrace. If they overflow the house they can tramp around in the yard."

"And what if it rains?" asked Mr Massoula with a rising inflection, glancing at Mrs. Banks. "What if it pours that day?"

"That's just what I said," put in Mrs. Banks. "Stanley, what would we do if it poured?"

"A marquee is very inexpensive," reassured Mr. Massoula soothingly, "and even if it doesn't rain you really should have it. I'll tell you what we'll do. I'll have one of our field engineers go over the property. We always have to do that anyway to study circulation problems and that sort of thing."

APPARENTLY the social season was dragging a bit, for a few days later Mr. Massoula arrived in person at 24 Maple Drive. He was accompanied by a sheepish-looking character with handlebar mustaches, whom he referred to as Joe. Mrs. Banks assumed that he was one of the field engineers whom Mr. Massoula had spoken about, although he looked more like a horse-car conductor.

Mrs. Banks was a meticulous housekeeper and she had always been proud of her home. Now, as Mr. Massoula and Joe wandered from room to room with cold appraising eyes and occasional mumbled comments, she realized that neither of them had ever before catered in such a hovel.

"Small," said Mr. Massoula

"I'll say," agreed Joe. "How many head did you say?"

"Hundred fifty."

"Jesus," said Joe.

"Circulation's bad," said Mr. Massoula.

"I'll say," agreed Joe.

"We'll have all the windows open on that day," assured Mrs. Banks.

"What we mean by circulation," said Mr. Massoula kindly, "is the guest flow from room to room. A room with two interior doors has minimum circulation. A room like this with only one is—is—well, it's a death trap. Where does this go?"

Mr. Massoula pulled the knob of a door. It came off in his hands.

"I'm so sorry," said Mrs. Banks miserably. "It does that unless you push it in first. That just goes into a closet anyway."

Mr. Massoula placed the knob on the dining room table. "Is this the pantry?" The two men seemed to fill the little room.

"Small," said Mr. Massoula.

"Dark," said Joe.

Mrs. Banks followed them gloomily back to the living room.

"Circulation in this room's O.K.," said Mr. Massoula.

"Only one that is," said Joe.

"But you couldn't get more than a hundred and twenty-five in the house."

"Squash 'em like bugs if you did," said Joe.

"Yes," said Mr. Massoula. "Even with a marquee you're going to be cramped. By the way, Joe, go out in the back and measure for the marquee. Now you see, madam, circulation's your big problem. The first thing you've got to do is clear this room of all furniture."

There was a suggestion or tears in Mrs. Banks' voice. "You don't mean the big davenport and the armchairs and—"

"Of course. And the piano. Everything must come out of this room. Now about these doors between the rooms. They've got to be taken off. You'd be surprised to see how much circulation you lose on account of doors. Especially doors like these."

Mrs. Banks might have forgiven him if he had not added that last sentence. As it was she lost her temper as an alternative to tears. "What in the world do you think I've got upstairs—a cold storage warehouse? And who do you think is going to lug all this stuff up there—if there was room? And who do you think is going to get it down again?"

But Mr. Massoula was a creative artist. Details were not in his line. "We'll connect the marquee to this French door from the living room," he said. He tried to open the door but it merely slammed violently back and forth at the top.

"It's stuck," explained Mrs. Banks. "I've been meaning to have that door fixed.'

Mr. Massoula opened a window and leaned out. "Hi, Joe," he bawled. "Figure on a connecting angle through the French door here. Measure from the outside. The thing's stuck."

"I'll say," came an angry voice from the lilacs. "Too many God-damn bushes out here. Ought to get rid of 'em."

Children's Room About Repapering

I am having my children's room papered in a plain yellow washable wallpaper, with the intention of painting nursery rhyme characters on the paper myself. Is this practicable? What type of paint would be best for this purpose? Any suggestions you can offer regarding a method for doing this will be appreciated. M. S. H.

Because of the large amount of work involved in hand-painting the nursery rhyme characters and because some wallpapers would not take paint well, I would suggest you not paint them directly onto the paper, but put them onto sheets of paper which can be mounted and hung as pictures. This way, you can use the pictures for years. If they were painted directly onto the paper, there would be no way to preserve them in a few years when the walls would need refreshening.

I suggest you visit an art store and look over their supply of paper suitable for such pictures. If you will tell them what you have in mind, they will be able to suggest just the right paper, I am sure. You could use either water colors or oils.

When finished, the pictures could be mounted on cardboard or simply framed. If you wished to give the "painted directly on the wallpaper" appearance, you could mount them on cardboard which is the exact color of the wallpaper.

Will you tell me how to keep red oak floors clean and waxed? Is it true that soap and water will turn them dark? C. E. C.

It is better not to wash any kind of wood floor with soap and water because water raises the grain, soaks and darkens it and completely removes the wax, making it necessary to start anew in building a protective wax coating. This is particularly true of oak because it is an open-grain wood. The best way to keep the floors clean and waxed is to wipe soiled areas frequently with cleaning and polishing wax (so labeled) and then rewax. This method will not completely remove the wax, but will remove all of the soil. When clean, apply several thin layers of paste wax, allowing each to dry thoroughly before buffing vigorously.

If the floors become quite soiled generally, they should be washed all over with a good solvent such as varsol and then rewaxed.

I would like to know if and where I could buy a black dye to darken the cement around my kitchen sink to match the black work table? M. P. D.

You can use analine dyes to blacken the cement. These can be purchased at most paint stores. Or, if the area is small it can be blackened with a high grade black writing ink.

I am eager to make a vinegar dressing, the kind one gets in restaurants that comes with cucumber and onion side salads and varieties of same. I have tried various ratios of vinegar and sugar and vinegar, water and sugar with discouraging and "bitter" results. I should be very grateful if you could give me a recipe for this dressing. H. G. K.

2 tablespoons sugar
½ teaspoon salt
Pepper, if desired

Capital Summer Can Be Fun, Say Congressional Wives

By Genevieve Reynolds

DESPITE the wilting humidity, congressional wives maintain that a Washington summer can be fun. They point out that this is about the only season they can call their soul their own. With official parties dormant, those who stay have time to visit their close friends, attend a new movie and get in an occasional game of bridge.

Mrs. James P. Kem, wife of the Missouri Senator, is one who is catching up on her reading and bridge playing. Also, she's finding time to browse in art galleries and book shops.

With the summer lull, Mrs. Walter F. George, wife of the Georgia Senator, finds more time to be with her numerous nonofficial friends.

Roberta Regan, wife of the Texas Representative, says that she now can have an occasional dinner at home with her husband. During the winter it's difficult for the popular couple to dine at home. The invitations are too numerous and the flow of constituents too constant.

Mrs. Edward L. Bartlett, wife of the delegate from Alaska, gets a nostalgic yen for cool Alaskan breezes when the Capital's steamy temperature gets too ferocious. Nonetheless, she's here until Congress adjourns. She breaks a quiet routine by an occasional swimming jaunt to the Eastern Shore of Maryland, with her family. In addition, she's catching up with her reading and sight-seeing around town.

It's to the office daily now for some congressional wives including Mrs. Lawrence Smith, wife of the Wisconsin Representative. While her husband's secretaries are vacationing, she's lending a hand.

However, she's still keeping active in the American Legion Auxiliary, of which she is the immediate past president. She plans to attend the organization's national convention in Philadelphia next month.

More than 500 of the 7500 first editions of the new Congressional cookbooks have been sold in the past couple of months, reports Mrs. Smith, the 1949 editor. One of the new ones landed in China. Now the recipient, an American woman, is teaching her Chinese friends the recipes in exchange lessons. Communist regimes, notwithstanding, the Chinese women are taking to the American recipes like swans to water.

This current heat wave prolongs the usual long office hours of Representative Katharine St. George. When she remembers the non-air-conditioned status of her apartment she decides working in her air-cooled Hill office isn't so unpleasant. It is by her preference, however, that her apartment is un-air-conditioned. Mrs. St. George doesn't like to sleep in artificially cooled rooms.

Regardless of Old Sol's relentless beams, Mrs. Joseph R. Farrington, wife of the Hawaiian Delegate, continues her breath-taking pace. As president of the National Federation of Republican Women's Clubs, she never lets up.

Either she's working at headquarters here or speaking somewhere in the country. Sometimes on trips to Wisconsin, Washington State, California, West Virginia and other States, she would make three or four addresses daily.

BITS OF This and That . . . Representative Helen Gahagen Douglas dashed up to Fairlee, Vt., to bid adieu to her husband, screen star Melvyn Douglas who will be off to Hollywood shortly to begin a new movie . . . Mrs. John L. McMillan, wife of the South Carolina Representative returned from a visit with her mother in Tennessee . . . Mrs. George Grant, wife of the Alabama Representative, swims almost daily at the Army and Navy Country Club.

Eat to Beat the Heat . . .

Wherever You Diet Elsewhere Would Be a Cinch

By Ida Jean Kain

Whether dieting seems more difficult eating a la restaurant or dining at home, depends . . . The homemaker is convinced that all that stands between her and a svelte silhouette is cooking three meals a day. This dietitician is inclined to agree with the homemaker who cooks for a family. Daily she hears, "What's for dessert tonight, Mom?" Imagine the reaction if she were to answer, "Stewed fruit without sugar!"

But perhaps you're in the other corner, and have no place to cook. Then of course you are positive that reducing would be a cinch, even a pleasure, if you had a place to fix a little something.

Your dilemma was pictured in a delightful cartoon showing two stylish stouts anxiously studying a menu, with one complaining to the other that restaurants just don't seem to care about calories!

Restaurants don't care—you pay your money and you take your choice. The calorie cutting is all up to you. Here are slimming tips for restaurant dining . . .

Salads are good slimming fare—but not in restaurants, unless you specify that the dressing be served on the side. Otherwise salads will be drenched in French dressing or coated with mayonnaise. In case they refuse to serve dressing on the side, they won't object to leaving it off.

In the meat course, you look for something broiled . . . ah, London broil, that ought to be low in calories, you think. Then it arrives covered with gravy! Well, restaurants have the gravy habit; so no matter what main course you may order, say firmly, no gravy. Make sure the waiter hears it.

Now the vegetables. There is quite an assortment, largely starch—fried potatoes, boiled potatoes, whipped potatoes; macaroni in tomato sauce, fried eggplant, corn, lima beans, string beans and spinch. They do not make it easy for you to follow the one-starch-with-a-meal plan. If you choose one starchy vegetable, then at only half a roll. And sometimes go to a careteria where there is an array of vegetables, and salads with dressing on the side.

Ah, the dessert order—but wait, if you had a starchy vegetable and a roll, dessert isn't on the diet. It's always easier to skip dessert when it is not included in the price of the meal.

But dining out needn't all be diet. If the gang suggests a lobster dinner, and it makes your mouth water—eat broiled lobster, and have a salad and a beverage. You're still slimming.

Don't look for reasons why you can't diet—look for ways to dodge calories and keep happy while losing.

Fat Boys Lose Pound a Day Following the Kain Diet

Seven and a half pounds off in seven days. The two dieters from The Washington Post Circulation Department, pictured here last Monday, couldn't be happier.

Ida Jean Kain is tsking, tsking a trifle, however.

One to three pounds a week is enough to lose, she says. If you eat less than your rightful quota of food, nature accommodates and drops your metabolism so that you won't burn up the food you do eat and you won't lose weight.

In this case she's sure everything is O. K. with George Manning and Austin Coleman, the two big boys who have been doing so well on the Ida Kain diet. "For short duration, fast slimming isn't harmful," she says, "and this initial loss probably comes from stored body liquid anyway."

From now on the weight loss will be slower, she predicts.

Both Mr. Manning and Mr. Coleman realize it but they are game to stick to the diet.

"I can button one of my suits I couldn't button before," Mr. Coleman says triumphantly. Of course, "the guy next door keeps inviting me in to watch him eat soft shell crabs and to feel how cold his glass of beer is. I feel like I'm in jail."

Mrs. Coleman, who is following the Kain diet as it appears in The Washington Post while Mr. Coleman adds a few extra calories the food expert suggests for men, has lost three pounds. "Maybe she cheated on the gumdrops I brought home for the kids," her husband says.

Mr. Manning hasn't been eating quite as much as Miss Kain suggests for men but he says he feels fine, doesn't mind the heat as much as he used to. He's determined to stick to the diet, too.

Both of them regard Wednesday—the last day of the diet for them—as just a beginning. They plan to eat sensibly until they get their figures back.

Watch for the final report—and a picture of the two dieters—in Friday's Washington Post.

One on the Aisle—

So the Actors Ate Well, Maybe

By Richard L. Coe

THE DUPONT'S new picture, "One Night With You," makes the startling admission right off the bat that it has no story to film. Then Nino Martini comes along with a story he thinks might make a movie.

It doesn't. It's about an Italian opera singer (guess who) who meets the daughter of an English diplomat on an Italian station platform when their respective trains have departed without them. If they'd done it on purpose I don't think they could have come up with a flimsier excuse for a movie.

One reason for this wan wheeze could be that it meant a group of English actors could go to Italy to make a picture, a procedure very popular these days among British actors.

This means that they can go to a land of comparative milk, honey and sunshine with which they were at war a few years before. Unlike pleasure-bent travelers they can spend more than the limited sum Britishers may take from their tight little isle. They can live on expense accounts for business purposes and such trips are naturally popular.

It could be, to be sure, that this Italian setting was all filmed on one of the sound stages near London, but for the players' pleasure I hope otherwise. Since the picture can hardly be said to be beneficial to an audience, I do hope it did the actors and technicians some good.

The story is handled in a painfully pedestrian style, the players, including Patricia Roc, Bonar Colleano, Hugh Wakefield, Stanley Holloway and Miles Malleson, all perform as though they'd like to draw their journey out as long as possible.

Martini sings a couple of songs, complete with one of those orchestras-out-of-nowhere which so bedevil the District Line's Bill Gold, a remark which I trust Busy Bill will not construe as a recommendation that he see the picture.

THE LITTLE'S current revival series is worth noting . . . At the moment two of the best French films ever made share the screen, "The Baker's Wife" and "Grand Illusion." . . . If you've missed either, today and tomorrow are your days. . . . Next, on Wednesday, will come a W. C. Fields feast, "The Bank Dick" and "My Little Chickadee," which provoked the most astonishing party the critical fraternity has luxuriated in for some time. The Little indeed seems back to its days of glory.

THIS, in case you haven't heard, is Dance Festival Week, during which amateur and professional ballroom dancers will be competing for free trips to Havana, where they'll be entertained by the dance-minded Cuban government . . . Locally, the teachers had their contest last night and on Wednesday night the best student couples will be chosen for the East Coast finals at a dance in the Mayflower's Sapphire Room . . . These finals will be next Sunday at the Mayflower's ballroom, with the Cuban Ambassador and his staff in attendance. For further details ask the Arthur Murray Dance Studio, 1106 Conn. ave., Executive 4100.

"ONE NIGHT WITH YOU." J. Arthur Rank-Universal-International Release produced by Josef Somlo. Screen play by C. Brahms and S. J. Simon from a story by Carlo Ludovico Bragaglia. Directed by Shaun Terence Young. At the Dupont.

The Lyon's Den

By Leonard Lyons

New York.—When Luis Munoz-Martin, the Governor General of Puerto Rico, arrived for the City Hall reception, Grover Whalen asked him: "What's the first thing you hear, when you reach the continental U. S. A.?" Munoz-Martin replied: "The first thing I hear is 'How do you spell it?'" . . . Mr. Whalen, who was to introduce him, checked the pronunciation of his name. "When in doubt," suggested Luis Munoz-Marin, "just say 'U. S. Marine.' That's close enough" . . . El Gardner of "Duffy's Tavern" lunched with Munoz-Marin in San Juan, studied the 300-year-old sun dial, glanced at his own watch and told his host: "Your clock's fast."

The International Ladies Garment Workers Union is spreading its radio network from coast to coast. The union is buying a radio station in Burbank, Calif. . . . The Screenwriters Guild sent Oliver H. P. Garrett, Valentine Davies and Ernest Paschal to New York, to organize a Television Committee of the Authors League. They set up a formula for such a committee, and arrangements for minimum wages, etc. . . . If Bobby Clark is unable to return to "As The Girls Go" this fall, producer Mike Todd would like to get Eddie Cantor to play the role. Cantor expects to be doing his radio program from the East.

This week Gen. George Marshall became a member of the Board of Directors of Pan-American Airways. And in honor of the new member, the board eliminated one rule which had been introduced by Juan Trippe. This rule penalized directors who arrive late at board meetings, and the rule was dropped because of the realization that General Marshall's busy program may make his prompt arrival difficult . . . Pan-Am directors get $100 for attending a meeting. Under the Trippe rule, $10 was deducted if a director is 5 minutes late, $25 if he's 10 minutes late, $35 if he's 15 minutes late, and $50 if he's a half hour late. These penalties would go into a kitty and would be split among the prompt directors.

Charles Luckman, president of Lever Bros., owns the Rancho San Antonio, one of the largest in California. It was held by the Lugo family for six generations. Last week Don Andres Lugo, direct descendant of the original owners of the ranch, presented Luckman with a scroll making him an honorary member of the Lugo family . . . Nicky Blair has signed Tommy Dorsey to open his Click Club in Phil. Dorsey will be followed by Billy Eckstine . . . Jack Emart, the Fat Man of radio and of John Falter's Saturday Evening Post covers, toured Armando's and Toots Shor's last night, paying his checks with bills neatly folded into a unique money-clasp—an ordinary wooden clothespin.

J. M. Kerrigan, the veteran actor whose most memorable role was with Victor McLaglen in "The Informer," is at Gregory Peck's summer theater at La Jolla. During a discussion about exit-lines, Kerrigan said that the greatest he ever heard came from John Drew, with whom he toured in "Trelawney of the Wells." At the close of each performance, Drew would take Kerrigan by the arm and say "Conduct me to my box, sir" . . . In Portland, Ore., Drew reeited the line: "Take me to my box, sir," then whispered to Kerrigan: "Yes, Joe, my wooden box." Those were the last words John Drew ever spoke onstage. He died a few minutes later.

THE FAMILY SCRAPBOOK

By Dr. Ernest G. Osborne

Getting Ready for Old Age

It's common knowledge today that people are likely to live from 15 to 20 years longer than they used to. This fact has many implications. One of the most important is that we should begin to plan for our old age. Old-age pensions, insurance and annuities can take care of the economic side of things. As important is building the foundation for busy and happy later years.

Children grow up and leave home. Parents who have centered everything in them may feel lost. Men may live a good many years after retiring from work. Unless other than work interests have been developed, these years may be long and dreary.

More and more, then, we see how valuable are interests and hobbies. It is not likely that these can be developed easily after the main business of life is done. Those who in their earlier years have begun to find satisfaction in things outside family and work interests will be the happy older people. They will not have to cling desperately to their grown children or become fussy, complaining old men and women. It will pay, then, to spend time developing "outside" interests even when one's children are small and when work could easily take all one's time and interest.

Arlington County, Va.

. . . Originally a part of Fairfax County, ceded in 1789 to the national government as Virginia's contribution to the District of Columbia.

When retroceded in 1846, the county was called Alexandria, after its principal city. In 1920, by an Act of the General Assembly of Virginia, the name was changed to Arlington—after the Earl of Arlington, to whom greater part of the land was conveyed by royal patent in 1669.

If you're considering Arlington for your future home, Washington Permanent will be happy to help you fulfill your plans, as it has already done for many thousands in the District, nearby Maryland and Virginia. Inquiries are cordially invited.

"What's a girl to do?"

"With a cake in the oven, dinner cooking and baby playing games with her spinach, a girl can't just leave things to run and answer the telephone in some other room. That's why we have an extension telephone in the kitchen.

"Besides being easy to answer (I never miss a call now), it's so handy for ordering groceries, shopping and other things. Just as important, it saves a lot of steps and time. I'd recommend this kind of 'kitchen help' to any family."

This Funny World

"Mr. J. W. Swenson? This is the Family Harmony Service of the Ideal Beauty Parlor. Your wife had a permanent wave today. Don't forget to notice it"

TRY IT

SIMPLE RINGTOSS WITH JAR RUBBERS

Take a box about the size of a shoebox and punch or cut five holes, evenly spaced along the center line of the lid. Push clothespins into each hole, pinching the "feet" together as you do this and leaving the center pin taller than the ones on each side.

The end pins should be arranged so that they straddle the edge of the box and hold the lid in place. Now get a package of fruit jar rubbers and standing about 10 feet away from the box, see if you can toss a few ringers.

It counts when you make a ring around a pin. Mark each clothespin with a number so there will be no doubt about the points scored.

This modern version of a very old game is great fun. Each player may throw 10 times, and by keeping score on paper, you can see who has the sharpest eye.

What's the Verdict?

POTENTIAL TORCH

Q. A woman who wanted a lounging robe examined for texture, color, style and design, liked one, and bought it. The second time she wore it, she lighted a cigarette, waved the match to extinguish it, and the robe flared, injuring the woman. She sues the store for damages for breach of warranty, and the store denies liability, citing a statute which says:

". . . If the buyer has examined the goods, there is no implied warranty as regards the defects which such examination ought to have revealed." Is the defense good.

A. The court in a case like this said: "Since outer garments intended for domestic wear are not unlikely to come into momentary contact with lighted matches, tobacco or stoves, it seems to us clear that a robe which, when this contact occurs, bursts into flame instantly and inflicts severe injury is unreasonably dangerous and unfit for use." So that, unless the woman were an expert on the characteristics of textiles who would have known upon examination that the robe was potential dynamite, she wins. . . . F. L. D.

BARNABY

Mr. Baxter thinks a car passing over this gravel road threw up the stone that broke our window the other night, Mrs. Van Ess—
Of course. It was silly of me to faint that way—
Barnaby says his Fairy Godfather broke our window. And borrowed your missing tennis net, too. But you'll receive a dozen new ones in return, I am told—
Amazing, the imagination of the child—
Gosh, Mr. O'Malley, I was afraid that little cop had caught you—
I went into one of my simpler vanishing acts. Any first-rate Fairy Godfather can do it—
Wish Gus would get here. To help irritate these clams—

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Maybe He Thinks This Is the 'District Lion'

The other day I listed a Give-Away item for a constituent who had a surplus kitten. To save space, we called it a "tiger kitten."

Promptly on the morning the item appeared, the donor answered his phone and found a small boy at the other end.

He thought that a baby tiger was being advertised, and hoped that he wasn't too late to claim it.

SUGGESTION

Mrs. Weir Gilliss, jr., of 1624 N. Abingdon st., Arlington, Va., comes up with a suggestion that I think qualifies as novel. She says:

"Every city has a zoo, to which children can be taken for a look at wild animals. But nobody seems to provide a place where city children can be taken for similar instruction regarding farm animals.

"We'd love to be able to take the kids out to the country on a Sunday. Perhaps some enterprising farmer might throw his place open for inspection for a nominal fee, and augment his income by selling cider, pony rides, fruits and vegetables.

"But it seems that it's much easier to show the children a lion's den than a pigpen."

Mrs. Gilliss' letter is certainly an interesting commentary on the urbanized lives we city folks lead.

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

Let's keep after the problem of traffic lights and those pesky buses.

Benning rd. isn't the only trouble spot. Almost any other street will do.

They roll through the yellow light, and anybody following them (but unable to see the signal) winds up violating the law and perhaps causing an accident.

I think the only solution is to get our public transportation underground, as has been done in other big cities.

Frank T. Driscoll,
220 Hamilton st. nw.

Dear Frank:

Subways would help, but they wouldn't solve the problem completely.

What about trucks, which are even bigger and higher than buses? Ever try to guess the color of the traffic light when you're behind one of those big 10-ton jobs?

I still say that our traffic lights are poorly placed. They should be higher, or in the middle of the street.

In their present position, they're not only hidden by high vehicles, but also by trees which line the curb. And very often they're lost in a kaleidoscopic background of neon advertising signs. Bill.

INCIDENTAL INTELLIGENCE

Did you know that it's illegal for a hacker to be more than five feet away from his cab when it's parked in a hack stand?

ADD SIGNS

Ann L. Jones of 9315 Wire ave., Silver Spring, Md., returns from a trip to Kansas with the report that in Wichita she saw a sign which said:

"Crook Furniture Co.—Honest Values."

OVERHEARD

Mrs. Marion N. Huff of 1500 New Hampshire ave. nw. reports that a couple walking a few feet ahead of her the other day were overheard to say:

He: I think we go down this street.

She: I don't think so. That traffic sign says, "Do Not Enter."

White House Repair Peek Advised

By Drew Pearson

Of course, I don't like to write anything about General "Happy Harry" Vaughan that might cause the President to call me an S. O. B. again.

Gen. Edgerton

Nevertheless, I do think that the Senate Expenditures Committee, now investigating the so-called "five-per centers," should take a careful look at something that is going on right under the President's own nose—namely, the repairing of his official abode, the White House.

Since this official abode is one that we all help to support, and of which we are all proud, it would seem proper for the Senate to investigate how a friend of Gen. Harry Vaughan's and of his lobbying sidekick, Col. James V. Hunt, should have been appointed to repair the White House—at a time when Hunt was trying to get a commission in connection with White House repair.

This friend is Maj. Gen. Glen E. Edgerton, retired, U. S. Army Engineers.

General Edgerton has been a fine Army officer, and well qualified, but so also were Generals Alden Waitt and Herman Feldman, who were suspended from the Army because they gave lobbyist James V. Hunt information on Army contracts that the press and public couldn't get.

Officially, it is explained that General Edgerton was appointed by the White House Repair Commission, including Senators McKellar of Tennessee, Martin of Pennsylvania, with Representatives Rabaut of Michigan and Keefe of Wisconsin.

However, there are all sorts of ways to skin a cat in Washington, and a Senate committee, looking beneath the surface, might unearth some interesting facts.

Decorating Interior

It would discover, for instance, that lobbyist Hunt has a client, Miss Dorothy Draper, who is an interior decorator desirous of getting a contract to redecorate the White House. If she gets the job, she pays a commission to Vaughan's friend, Hunt. No wonder Hunt wanted a friend in charge of White House repairs.

The Senate would also discover that General Edgerton, the man now in charge of White House repairs, admits—as he did to this column — that both General Vaughan and lobbyist Hunt are his friends. He also admitted that he knew about Miss Draper, the decorator.

It would also discover that both Vaughan and Hunt pulled wires on an earlier occasion to get General Edgerton appointed to the key spot of War Assets Administrator. This is the job that had control over selling surplus war material and was for a long time a gravy source for lobbyists.

Vaughan and friend Hunt failed to get General Edgerton appointed to this bonanza-dispensing job, but they did have another key man inside the War Assets Administration—none other than one of Vaughan's and the President's old cronies from Battery D.

Inside War Assets

Their friend is Joe Major, who, incidentally, flew in the President's private airplane with Harry Vaughan and Harry Truman down to the battery's thirty-fifth reunion in Little Rock, Ark., last month.

Joe Major, when queried, was quite frank in admitting that he receives telephone calls all the time from Harry Vaughan. Major denied that Vaughan was pressuring him, but admitted that the calls came to him while in his office and while in charge of getting rid of surplus Government property. Major estimated he had received about 500 phone calls from Vaughan, and in addition visited Vaughan about once a week at his home.

Major was also quite frank in admitting that lobbyist Hunt had asked him to use his influence to get General Edgerton appointed to the top job of dispensing surplus property.

Joe Major also knows John Maragon well. In fact, he refers to him as John.

"I accepted John because he was a friend of Harry's," Major explained.

That raises another interesting chapter that the Senate could probe with profit—namely, the War Assets activity of Vaughan's friend Maragon, who poses as the great friend of both Truman and Vaughan and seemed to prove it by accompanying them to the Potsdam conference along with Stalin and Churchill.

School Chiefs Oppose Reds As Teachers

New York, July 24 (AP).—Members of the Communist Party should not be employed as school teachers, a charter adopted by 34 school superintendents from 25 States declared today.

The charter was made public by Dr. Paul R. Mort, chairman of the eighth annual Teachers College work conference for school superintendents. The conference was sponsored by Columbia University's Teachers College.

The charted included these provisions.

"Local control of schools must be vitalized by a more active participation of the people."

Minority Problems Cited

"Problems or race, color and minority groups must be solved."

"There must be a vigorous program of instruction in citizenship through active participation in the problems of living."

"New devices in education must be discovered to conserve human values and community resources, and newer teaching practices must be more quickly made available to schools."

"Teacher's salaries must be raised to the point where able young people will want to enter the profession, and where established teachers may live in security equal to their responsibilities to their communities."

Building Shortage Noted

"A program of school district reorganization must be effected in areas where adequate educational opportunity cannot be provided."

The charter added that there is an "alarming shortage of school buildings, due to the failure of many communities, not only to maintain old buildings, but to plan and construct new ones."

Number 25 in a Series ... Hecht Co. Personalities in the News

MILTON SHLESINGER, Operating Manager of The Hecht Co., Silver Spring, turned from the banking business to department store work 20 years ago. He has been with The Hecht Co. since 1945 and directed the research and surveys which were made prior to the building of our Silver Spring Store. Mr. Shlesinger credits this type of planning and follow through with the smooth operation of the store today.

HARRY HIRSHBERG, Merchandise Manager of The Hecht Co., Silver Spring, is a graduate of the Wharton School of Finance. He has been with The Hecht Co. since 1936. He spent 4 years as a Lt. Commander with the Navy's Amphibious Forces. As Merchandising Manager, it was his job to choose the million-dollar inventory for the grand opening of the Silver Spring Store. He sees to it that the things the buying public wants are available from day to day in good assortments at The Hecht Co., Silver Spring.

Right Where You Wanted It ...

Say Milton Shlesinger and Harry Hirshberg, Managers of The Hecht Co., Silver Spring

The Hecht Co. in Silver Spring is right where you, the 250,000 people of the Silver Spring trading area, wanted it. What's more, the surveys we took in 1945 and 1946 not only supplied the information of where ... but also the type of store you wanted. Now, conveniently located to Northwest Washington, Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties is a store with over 160,000 square feet of selling space ... 125 selling departments in its four modern, convenient shopping floors. The design of the building ..., the arrangement of the departments were the result of 2 years of research. Our own staff traveled from Maine to California to study and examine suburban stores in other cities. The information they brought back, together with the things you, the public, requested, guided us in bringing you one of the finest suburban department stores in the country.

Here are some of the outstanding features of The Hecht Co. Silver Spring: Parking space for over 1,000 cars adjacent to the store ... public transportation to whisk you to our door from every direction ... Monday and Friday night openings, as well as all day Saturday throughout the year because you indicated you wanted these extra hours to shop with the whole family ... delightful air-conditioning in the Summer, healthful heating in the Winter ... a women's beauty salon with private 'phones in every booth ... a kiddies' barber shop ... a beautifully decorated tea room and soon to come, our own retail bake shop where delicious pies, pastries, breads and cakes will be made right on the premises ... and, to top it all off, the same complete selections of famous brand merchandise carried in The Hecht Co. Washington are available at this Silver Spring store.

It took two years and $2,500,000 to build and equip this store and it takes an operating staff of 500 associates to make your shopping pleasant as well as convenient. Right where you wanted it ... is one of America's most complete suburban stores ... The Hecht Co. Silver Spring ... a great place to work ... a great place to shop.
